B.C. CAPITAL ESCAPES SENTENCE TO OAKALLA

VANCOUVER (CP)—Proposal to move the B.C. capital to the mainland was turned down by municipal council suburban Burnaby Monday night, but only by a slim margin.

Councillor Camille Mather said curtailed Canadian Pacific Steamship service would make travel to Victoria difficult. She suggested Oakalla Prison Farm or the B.C. Penitentiary suitable sites for the capital. The proposal was defeated 4 to 3.

Save-Ferry Drive Led By MLAs

With just 15 days to go before the announced termination of CPR service from Victoria to Vancouver to Seattle, the B.C. legislature is leading a desperate battle to keep the ships running.

Main action Monday was in the Legislature, where Works Minister W. N. Chant introduced a motion, seconded by George Gregory (Lib.-Victoria), asking the federal government to assure continuation of year-round service between Vancouver and Victoria.

The motion touched off a barrage against the CPR and the federal government, which crossed party lines.

Several members urged the government take over all CPR services.

The CPR has announced that, after sailings of Feb. 25, service from Victoria to Vancouver-Seattle will be suspended during the winter, and the night steamer to Vancouver and all service to Port Angeles ended completely.

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell today bitterly criticized local members of Parliament for failing to speak up against the CPR's decision.

Joint Municipal Protest Possible

He also blasted federal government "legal excuses" for not taking action and threw his support behind suggestions that the federal or provincial governments should take over the entire CPR ferry service on the west coast.

He said he probably will call an intermunicipal committee meeting to organize a joint municipal protest against the suspension.

Ald. Dowell said he was "surprised" when reading accounts of a debate in the Commons on the CPR plan "that apparently there were no remarks from our own members, Defence Minister George Pearkes and A. deB. McPhillips.

"You'd think our own members would at least say something. The member from Vancouver, Mr. Winch, did."

Ald. Dowell said the federal government's attitude of "utter disregard is unbelievable. It seems to me they've taken the easy way out and are making excuses."

(Transport Minister George Hees said the federal government does not plan to interfere with the suspension. He said Ottawa has no legal obligations to maintain a ferry service.)

"Legally speaking they may be right," said Ald. Dowell, "but I think they have some moral obligation to this city which is the capital of B.C."

'CPR Wants All Cream, No Milk'

He said he fully supported suggestions during a debate in the provincial legislature urging a federal or provincial take-over of all CPR ferry services here, using profitable runs to offset the cost of losing operations.

"The CPR wants all the cream and none of the milk," Ald. Dowell charged.

He said he was keeping in daily contact with Mayor Percy Scurrell, vacationing in Palm Springs, who has offered to lead a delegation to Ottawa if necessary.

Oak Bay municipal council entered the fight Monday, voting to wire a protest to federal Transport Minister George Hees.

Coun. Fred Robinson said the CPR's winter ferry function should be taken on the basis of the year-round operation, and that the company should not be allowed to drop the service and pick it up again "in the most lucrative part of the season."

Coun. Geoffrey Ellis termed the move "a great unfairness" on the part of the CPR.

"The more we hit at the federal government the better," said Coun. Fred Hawes. He suggested the CPR should at least retain the night steamers until B.C. government ferries start operations from Sidney next year.

George Bonner, president of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association, brought in the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway. In a wire to Attorney-General Robert Bonner, he suggested increased E & N service, including day and night passenger trains with sleeping car accommodations, be provided from Nanaimo to Vancouver.

An obscure clause in the 88-year-old terms of agreement under which British Columbia joined confederation may yet be a factor in the battle for the ferries.

The clause was detailed by Attorney-General Bonner in the legislature Monday.

He said he had searched

NEW 2,500-MILE H-ROCKET CHOSEN

U.K. Goes a Bluestreak

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain announced plans today to go ahead with development of a 2,500-mile rocket as the weapon best suited to her defence needs.

It is the Bluestreak, a guided missile capable of delivering a hydrogen warhead. It can be fired from underground emplacements. There have been reports that it may be tested before the end of this year.

The report, reviewing the first two years of Britain's current five-year nuclear age plan, estimated the 1959-1960 defence bill at £1,514,000,000 ($4,250,000,000). This is about one-third of Britain's total annual budget and £200,000,000 more than the actual spending in the current financial year ending next month.

The government said Britain's production of megaton hydrogen bombs is proceeding steadily, in addition to the growing stock of smaller kiloton nuclear weapons.

The report noted satisfactory progress in the development of flying bombs to be released from high-flying aircraft outside the range of enemy anti-aircraft defence systems.

The defence of Britain's own "deterrent bases" would be performed increasingly by ground-to-air missiles, of which the British-built Bloodhound Ramjet was the most outstanding.

Other points made by the report were:

A supersonic, low-flying, nuclear-bomb-carrying plane, the TSR-2, was being developed for army support and other tactical operations.

NEW VIOLENCE MARKS STRIKE

—New violence was reported today in the Newfoundland pulpwood cutters' strike.

Union sources said windshields of six cars, including an RCMP vehicle, were smashed when a police-escorted motorcade attempted to pass through a picket line.

Two women pickets were reported injured.

This plane would be able to carry air-to-air missiles.

Work has begun on four guided missile County class ships with combined steam and gas turbine machinery. Two more will be started soon.

Satisfactory progress is being made to end military conscription by 1962 and reorganize a completely voluntary military force.

A day of grim weather throughout the continent brought other small tornadoes to Mitchell in southern Indiana and a small area south of Indianapolis today.

Sleeping City Hit 'Like Train'

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—A tornado with winds up to 110 miles an hour smashed into St. Louis early today, spreading death and destruction from the southwest edge of the city to the centre.

Twenty-two bodies were in the city morgue. Police said the death toll was expected to rise.

The two city hospitals reported they treated and released 270 persons and kept 55 for additional treatment.

In suburban Brentwood the storm felled the 300-ft. transmitting tower of radio station KXLW. Another transmitting tower, that of television station KTVI, was flattened in southwest St. Louis. It crushed two residences and three parked cars but no one was injured.

The storm hammered hardest on a seven-by-30 block area a mile west of the downtown heart of the city.

It is a predominantly Negro neighborhood.

Searchers worked throughout the night, turning over rubble in frantic rescue efforts.

At dawn, they renewed their methodical hunt for the dead and the living caught in falling bricks, concrete and lumber.

St. Louis was lashed by torrential rains for hours before the tornado struck "like a train."

"God knows how many people are trapped in those buildings," said deputy fire chief James Sauerwein.

Debris was piled two feet deep in the section hardest hit.

TERRIFIC BLOW

The storm struck at 2:20 a.m. William McAllister was leaving a gasoline station in the area when the storm struck.

"There was a terrific glow of light as if a cloud was illuminated and there was the sound like the roar of a tremendous automobile racing its engine," McAllister said.

"Within two minutes the sound of the storm had passed and there was a terrific silence."

UTTER CONFUSION

The area was utter confusion. One policeman reported six bodies had been carried from a levelled four-family apartment two blocks from Busch Stadium where St. Louis Cardinals play. The ball park itself was not damaged.

Police said persons were trapped in at least three smashed homes or apartments.

Some 14 persons were reported trapped in a three-storey frame building at Delmar and Whittier, in the direct path of the storm.

Zeb Williams was asleep. "I was blown against the wall and out of the window and landed safely on a mattress in the street below," he said. He could hear the groans of other occupants trapped in the rubble.

Before the tornado struck, torrential rain lashed the area. More than two inches of water fell in less than six hours. Police in suburban University City said more than 150 basements there had been flooded.

Hundreds of spectators wandered through the debris, stunned by the storm which struck as they slept.

The storm hit the same general area where a tornado in 1927 claimed more than 100 lives.

Sommers Case Flares Again

George Gregory, Liberal M.L.A. for Victoria, challenged Attorney-General Robert Bonner in the legislature Monday to explain why he delayed prosecution in the case of ex-lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

(Attorney-General Bonner was to speak in the budget debate this afternoon.)

Mr. Gregory stated that the original charges of bribery against Mr. Sommers made by accountant Charles Eversfield were "no mere shots in the dark."

He said Eversfield in his statutory declaration handed to the attorney-general on Dec. 5, 1955, specifically accused Sommers of receiving $607 worth of rugs; $2,500 telegraphed by H. W. Gray; $1,000 in cash mailed by H. W. Gray; four $500 bonds and two $50 bonds.

On each one of these specific charges, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, Mr. Gregory said.

ACQUITTED ON NONE

"In respect of no charges made by Eversfield was the minister acquitted. In respect of only two was the jury unable to agree on a verdict."

SHIP MISSING; 31 ABOARD

The 657-ton ship was last heard from Sunday morning when her skipper radioed she was "in danger" and fighting heavy weather and severe icing.

Months to resolve only part of the case. Yet the attorney-general undertook to do it in two hours and decided to do nothing; even though it was perfectly obvious that if Sommers was not guilty of taking bribes, Eversfield, who had put his charges in the form of a statutory declaration, was guilty of perjury."

Mr. Gregory recalled how Sommers had started an action for libel based on the statutory declaration which Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy and Eversfield gave to the attorney-general on Dec. 5, 1955.

"Only three people knew of its existence at that time—Sturdy, Eversfield and the attorney-general. And one of them told Sommers."

"It is most unlikely that either Sturdy or Eversfield did because they had, after all, gone to the attorney-general to complain to him about Sommers."

"And yet Sommers learned of its existence, not merely in general terms, but specifically, even of its date and even before whom it was made."

"Who told Sommers? I suggest that a process of elimination leads to the conclusion

Dulles Goes To Hospital For Hernia

(Times News Service) WASHINGTON—State Secretary Dulles, who had, after all, gone to the attorney-general to complain to him about Sommers.

Dulles also will be treated for his colon inflammation, which has resisted medication. Treatment will require several weeks of rest.

"The secretary is worn out," a hospital spokesman said. "He needs a rest."

His ailment, kept secret for more than a month, was disclosed by President Eisenhower Monday night after Dulles asked and got a formal leave of absence. It immediately posed two big questions: Will Dulles, who will be 71 Feb. 25, return to his post? Will the West, with an ailing Dulles or without him at all, revise its policy toward new Soviet threats and demands on Germany?

In Britain, both outcomes were feared.

The British press, however—even Dulles' sharpest critics—showed unprecedented sympathy for his illness and its possible effects.

Ex-Premier's Family Surprised By B.C. Plan for $5,000 Pension

Byron Johnson Jr. son of the former premier of British Columbia, today expressed "surprise" at the Social Credit government bill to provide his father with a lifetime pension of $5,000 a year and said it

"was neither requested, required nor discussed."

Speaking with the Times by telephone from Vancouver, Mr. Johnson said that his mother and father were holidaying in California and that the implication of the bill — that his father was in stringent circumstances—was not true.

(The bill was introduced in the House Monday afternoon by Premier Bennett, who said that "the great service" of the former premier should be recognized. It would start payment on April 1 this year.)

"If this had been a general bill, setting up a pension plan for retired premiers, it would have been a different matter," Mr. Johnson said.

"However, it was introduced solely in the name of my father and puts a different construction on the whole thing."

Ex-premier Johnson is not able to discuss the subject because of a partial speech paralysis resulting from a stroke suffered in April, 1955.

Since that time, he has been making slow but steady progress and is now able to walk with the aid of a cane.

In 1950, while attending a Dominion-Provincial conference in the east, Mr. Johnson was badly injured in a car crash outside Quebec and flown home to Victoria for hospitalization.

He is understood to have given up his business contacts when he assumed the office of Premier in 1947.

Byron Johnson and his brother John followed their father in the cartage business in this city and created a successful hauling and building supply business.

The Premier had been a partner in Evans, Coleman and Johnson Brothers and Gilley Brothers of New Westminster, as well as a director of the B.C. Electric.

Despite the loss of income from entering politics and giving up his business connections, and the heavy expense of two severe physical setbacks, Mr. Johnson was believed to have lieved by his close friends to be in "reasonably comfortable" circumstances.

The family occupies a fine home in the Uplands at 2895 Beach Drive.

STATEMENT

In a prepared statement in Vancouver today, Byron Johnson Jr. said:

"Because my mother and father are in California on vacation, I have been asked to comment on the Byron Ingemar Johnson Act, introduced in the House yesterday. Last spring Mr. Ron Worley arranged for Premier Bennett to see dad at our home in Victoria.

"During the course of the visit, which was the first time he had seen Mr. Bennett since 1952, it was suggested that my parents might like to use the PGE private car for a trip, a gesture which was appreciated but subsequently declined.

"Later we heard from my uncle John that Mr. Worley had said something to him about a possible pension for former premiers.

"The subject was never discussed between the premier and my father.

"As there was only one former premier living at the time, it was a family joke that Mr. Bennett was preparing for his own defeat.

"From a family point of view it should be made clear that the idea of a pension originated with Mr. Bennett and was not requested or required.

"From a human point of view it is always nice to be recognized in a sincere manner.

UNFORTUNATE

"But one would think that the premier would have contacted my mother or father before making the announcement.

"I feel it is very unfortunate that Mr. Bennett has chosen to use my father's name alone. If the premier had chosen to make a general bill, for future pensions, reaction by the public and by my own family would have been far different."

Asked by The Times if his father would accept the $5,000 a year pension if it passed the House, Mr. Johnson said:

"Frankly, I don't know. Because of the fact he's in California, and of his illness and speech infirmity it is difficult to discuss it fully with him."

BYRON JOHNSON

Mr. Johnson was first elected for Victoria riding in 1933 but lost his seat in 1937 after his business took him to New Westminster. He came back to the legislature in 1945 as member for New Westminster, became Coalition Premier in December, 1947, after the late John Hart retired, and was then defeated in the Social Credit victory of 1952 following the breakup of the Coalition.

the terms in vain for reference to a Vancouver-Victoria steamship service, but said they called for regular steamship service between Victoria and San Francisco, and Vancouver and Olympia, Wash.

It had not been determined whether the Dominion had ever undertaken or discharged this responsibility, he said, "but it seems that it might be roughly equated to a daily service between Victoria and Vancouver."

Mr. Bonner said he was not sure what use could be made of these terms of confederation. But if the legislature supported a motion to have the Victoria-Vancouver service continued, it would be one line of discussion between federal and provincial authorities.

The clause in question reads:

"The Dominion will provide an efficient mail service fortnightly by steam communication between Victoria and San Francisco; a twice weekly service between Victoria and Olympia; the vessels to be adapted for the conveyance of freight and passengers."

The CPR expressed its side of the question in a telegram to Mr. Bonner, which he read to the legislature Monday night.

The company explained the operating licenses for Princess Joan and Princess Elizabeth expire Feb. 26 and March 21, and that it would take $2,000,000 each to put the ships in shape.

But explanations did nothing to blunt the tongues of MLAs, who gave the CPR a verbal blistering.

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi: "A callous disregard has been shown for the transportation needs of B.C. when the federal government allows such people as the CPR to pull out its services. In eastern Canada the federal government has interested itself in various public works enterprises which have made a considerable contribution to the transport system. Either the CPR should continue its services or give up its concessions."

John Squire (CCF-Alberni): The federal government should take over the CPR's Nanaimo-Vancouver run. It is unfair that the people should have to subsidize the unprofitable Victoria-Vancouver run while the CPR continues to make profits on the Nanaimo service.

Herbert Bruch (SC-Esquimalt): If the CPR wants to pull of unprofitable runs, it should get out completely and let someone else have a try.

Discussion on the transportation question was expected to continue in the legislature today.

SOMMERS

that it was no one other than the attorney-general.

"It is a matter of court record that Sommers used this knowledge in an action for personal gain," Mr. Gregory said.

"If the attorney-general turned the statutory declaration over to Sommers, who was at that time both a personal friend and a cabinet colleague, so that he could sue on it, he was obviously guilty of the most serious breach of legal and moral integrity."

Mr. Gregory also criticized Mr. Bonner for "his failure to direct a retrial of those of the accused who were not acquitted" in the bribery case.

"Is there any reason why C. D. Schultz and his company, John M. Gray and B.C. Forest Products Ltd. should be treated differently from any other accused?" he asked.

"They are left in a most unpleasant position. True, they are not convicted. On the other hand, the jury was unable to agree that there was any reasonable doubt as to their guilt."

"The attorney-general's inaction at this time deprives them of the right, if they are, in fact, innocent, of having their innocence established so that they may once again hold up their heads and walk in society."

GIGANTIC MOUNTAIN SLIDE
POISED OVER SWISS HAMLET

VEIGE, Switzerland (AP)—Authorities announced Monday that a huge mountain slide threatens the Swiss Alpine hamlet of Herbriggen and could cut the only supply route for more than 5,000 tourists and villagers in the luxury resort of Zermatt.

A Swiss pilot flying over the area noticed the slide moving slowly down the slope of 14,205-foot Hadelhorn Mountain. Geologists estimated the slide consists of more than 5,000,000 cubic feet of ice, earth and rocks.

Science Now Shrinks Piles
Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations. Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months.

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Gov't Plans Parley On Tax-Sharing

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—The federal government is planning a federal-provincial conference of finance ministers soon to set the stage for technical studies of tax-sharing problems.

The studies could form the basis for a full-scale federal-provincial conference on tax-sharing, if the government decides to convene one.

Finance Minister Fleming elaborated briefly on plans for preliminary studies in replying Monday night to Paul Martin (Liberal, Essex East), who called for a federal-provincial conference at once—a full-scale meeting attended by premiers.

Referring to the need for preliminary studies before a full conference, Mr. Fleming said: "The success of a conference depends on the preparatory work."

But he did not say that a

Tories Charged With 'Reneging'

The minister's statement came after a 14-hour speech by Mr. Martin criticizing the government for "reneging" on a promise to call a federal-provincial conference last year.

Mr. Martin proposed a motion of non-confidence in the government, calling for a conference at once to deal with matters of common concern such as fiscal arrangements and unemployment.

In his lengthy, broadside attack, the former health minister suggested that the government, with its forecast $700,000,000 deficit, isn't calling a new conference with the provinces because it would be "embarrassed by additional demands."

Besides, he added, the Conservative governments of Ontario and Manitoba will face elections soon. The only way Premiers Frost and Roblin could avoid the embarrassment of a federal turn-down of their demands at a conference was for Mr. Diefenbaker to do nothing.

In two election campaigns Mr. Diefenbaker had promised to resolve once and for all the fiscal problems of the provinces.

"If he wants the people of Canada to continue to have faith in his assurances, he can not renege on this question any longer."

Mr. Martin said a federal-provincial conference should also deal with unemployment, constitutional amendment, and the proposed bill of rights.

CCF House Leader Hazen Argue, supporting Mr. Martin, said the government has taken an "arrogant" and insulting attitude towards the provinces.

Full Conference Will Be Called

He said he hopes the provincial treasurers will be able to meet him soon, probably after the 1959 sessions of the provincial legislatures. The ministerial meeting would list the studies to be undertaken later by a technical committee of experts.

Mr. Fleming said eight provinces, all but Newfoundland and Alberta, have indicated willingness to participate. And Monday night Premier Manning of Alberta said his government has no objection to participation.

Mr. Fleming said the provinces were invited to make all possible suggestions.

Planned Visit by a Federal Government Official to a DEW Line Radar Installation in the Canadian north was delayed for more than eight months by U.S. authorities.

A report tabled Monday for CCF House Leader Argue said permission was requested April 23, 1957, to send A. M. Bancroft of the department of mines and technical surveys to a station on the Distant Early Warning line.

The request was made by the defence department to the U.S. Air Force through the RCAF project office in New York. Permission was not granted until Jan. 27, 1958.

Five-Man Board For Power Body

The B.C. Power Commission is to become a five-man board instead of three.

Premier Bennett introduced a bill in the legislature on Monday clearing the way for the change.

The new commission will be appointed after March 31 when resignation of two of the members of the existing commission becomes effective. Chairman T. H. Crosby and member H. J. McLeod have tendered their resignations on that date. The third member, H. H. Griffin, quit several weeks ago.

POWER FIGHT

All three resignations stem from the controversy over power development policy which began early last November when the general manager of the commission, H. Lee Briggs, charged the government with undermining the commission in favor of private power.

He was fired by the commission later resigning and at the request of the premier, Mr. Crosby and Dr. McLeod agreed to date their resignations March 31.

Mr. Griffin left immediately. He since has taken a position in Ottawa with the Board of Transport.

The whole question resulted in appointment of a Royal Commission under UBC economics department head, Dr. Gordon Shrum, which is investigating all phases of power development in B.C.

The bill, providing for a new power commission "of not more than five members," will increase the borrowing power of the commission from $250,000,000 to $300,000,000.

Two other bills will increase borrowing powers of the PGE and Toll Bridges and Highways Authority by $30,000,000. The PGE will jump from $110,000,000 to $120,000,000 and the Toll Bridges and Highways Authority from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000.

OLDS, Alta. (CP)—Social Credit won Monday's by-election in Olds constituency by a 2-to-1 margin over the Liberal party in a two-way fight to fill the only vacancy in the Alberta legislature.

The seat was retained for the government by Roderick A. Macleod, 50-year-old mayor of Sundre, a central Alberta town of 800 where he operates a general store. His opponent was Walter Anderson, a 41-year-old farmer who ran for the Liberals in his first try at politics.

The government now holds 37 seats in the 61-seat legislature, unchanged from the general election of 1955.

Olds constituency has voted Social Credit since 1935 when the party formed its first government. The riding has never failed to have its representative on the government side of the House, a record which dates back to 1905 when Alberta became a province.

Complete returns from all 45 polls gave Mr. Macleod 3,181 votes compared with 1,543 for Mr. Anderson—a majority of 1,638.

The Abandoned Capital

IN JUST TWO WEEKS THE capital city of British Columbia will be cut off from the mainland of Canada by sea transport. Blandly, without even notifying the Federal Government, the Canadian Pacific Steamship service abandoned the 150,000 persons who inhabit this southern tip of Vancouver Island.

Ironically, the reason given by Canadian Pacific is that it had lost the business to air traffic; and almost simultaneously Trans-Canada Air Lines (which shoved CPA aside to get the route some years ago) now says that it is willing to give another carrier rights to the route because it can't make money. If, in all this business, Victorians feel like the shuttlecock in a badminton game, they may be excused.

The sense of outrage felt by most citizens at their offhand dismissal by CPSS stems from the knowledge that, since the 1880's, Canadian Pacific has done very well from this island. As the late Chief Justice Gordon Sloan noted in his 1945 forestry report, the company spent $2.5 millions to build 82 miles of railway between Esquimalt and Nanaimo, and was rewarded (under the third-party sale of E. and N. timber lands) with 3,000 square miles of superb forest worth in excess of $25 millions plus other mineral rights.

Apparently the Canadian Pacific now feels that this was not enough, or that historic considerations may be swept aside when the "territory has been worked". Many national companies lose in some areas; their aim is to make the overall picture profitable. When it happens that the company involved is a public carrier, surely the question of convenience and necessity, affecting as it does the broad national interest, is worthy of consideration.

The Federal Government says it is powerless to act. The very least it could do would be to subsidize the line during the lean winter months, until the Provincial Government service is ready to start. Perhaps, under emergency conditions, when such subsidies must be kept to a minimum, it could dock at Sidney as CPSS have done in the past and thus save two hours on each run.

The only alternatives are to fly—which is not too certain during the winter months—or to drive to Nanaimo to catch a ferry. A few nanostorms such as we have experienced recently could preclude both those possibilities. In effect, we could be completely cut off, "snowed in," isolated. It is a prospect which every citizen will view with alarm, dismay and anger.

Some Help But Not Enough

BUDGET PROVISION TO HIRE 268 additional mental hospital staff members is encouraging. The announcement of that development does not, however, convince informed quarters in Greater Victoria that their problem is solved.

Neither the president of the Greater Victoria Association for Retarded Children nor the president of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association is completely satisfied.

The former suggests funds are still inadequate to do the job that is required. The latter explains that the Victoria branch will not be satisfied until a treatment centre for the mentally ill is established on Vancouver Island.

But the very fact that extra money is being allocated to provide more staff proves one point: the Government has recognized at last that the complaints of press and public have validity, and has been compelled to act.

On several occasions the Government was informed that more money was needed if trained personnel were to be retained in the service and if more satisfactory conditions were to be established to prevent the excessive turnover.

Apparently that point has been recognized in part at least by the Government's decision to increase staff.

An Annual Reminder

COMMUNITIES ACROSS CANADA are now observing White Cane Week, a small part of the year set aside by the Canadian Council of the Blind and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind to remind the public of the work that is being done for handicapped citizens.

Victoria's White Cane Club is one of 68 such organizations across the nation; its membership comprises about half of the 200 sightless persons in this area. It serves as a social and recreational centre for the blind, providing opportunities for games, sports, lectures and get-togethers.

It is a striking thing, however, that the public announcements of blind organizations dwell only partially on the needs of their members.

Knowing all too well the handicaps of the afflicted, the blind use every opportunity to stress the value of proper care of the eyes, the need for early treatment in cases of disease, and the services available to lighten the lot of the sightless.

White Cane Week is not an appeal for funds; the CNIB in Victoria is a member of the Community Chest. But it is an effort to remind the public that some of our citizens have lost their sight, that they are working energetically and courageously to overcome their handicap, and that they deserve the active interest of the more fortunate.

In India: Lady or Tiger?

PANDIT NEHRU'S DAUGHTER, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, has been elected president of the Congress Party, and some of the old guard rightists within its rank feel they face a new interpretation of that classical dilemma concerning the lady or the tiger.

Mrs. Gandhi has taken a post which has become unattractive to ambitious party men because the Congress president is so completely overshadowed by her father.

She is reported to represent Congress Party sentiment considerably left of Nehru and his middle-of-the-road supporters. She has been in and out of British prisons during the independence struggles and is recognized as a leader of the "ginger group". Her partisan political value rests partly on the influence she can wield among women's groups, in whose affairs she has been active.

The honor bestowed upon Mrs. Gandhi is not without its accompanying embarrassment. Some elements within the party have murmured nervously about the family hold on the movement. In addition to her father, her grandfather also held the office she now occupies, and belief has been expressed that a monolithic character is emerging as the father and the daughter control executive and organizational wings of the party. Suggestions have already been advanced that this is another step in the founding of a Nehru dynasty.

The tasks ahead of the new woman-party president are formidable. One of them concerns her ability, or will, to remain in office for a substantial time and not just fill in until elections next December.

If she is to be a stop-gap, her personality is scarcely that of a person dedicated to a holding operation only. She is an individual with ideas of her own, and she will be run, what it should do, and where it should lead the country.

It would not be surprising if she decided to stir the party out of its lassitude and apathy in ways that would be uncomfortable for some of the old guard.

They have seen Mrs. Gandhi placed in the office of party president. They may reasonably ask what is to come out of that office during her tenure: the lady or the tiger?

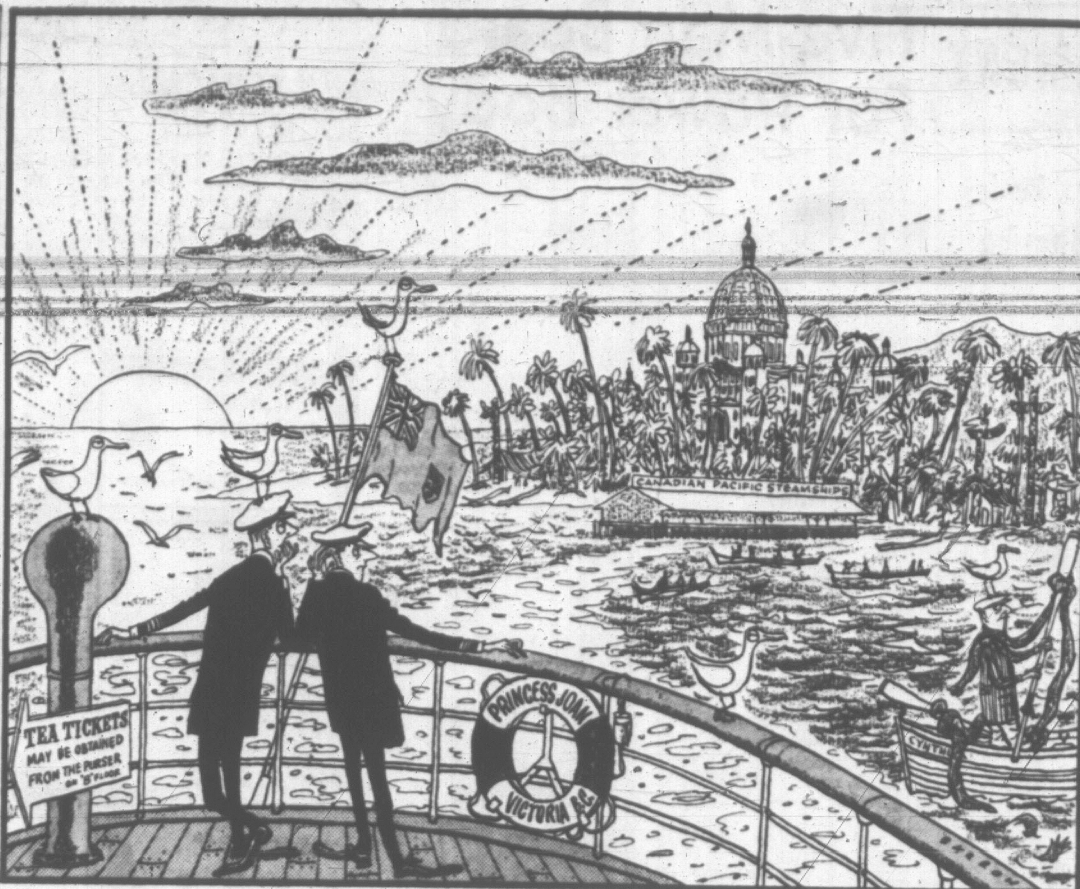

End of a Conversation Piece?

RECENTLY IN WASHINGTON the Atomic Energy Commission showed newsmen the model of a new atomic device, weighing five pounds, with the ability to generate power for at least a year.

Officials said it would take 1,450 pounds of batteries to produce an equivalent amount of electrical energy. Russia, they added, also has a lightweight generator, probably operated on a different principle.

Here, it would seem, may be the start of a new revolution and the beginning of an end to the old conversation piece opening: "How many miles do you get to the gallon?"

"... And so, as the sun sinks slowly in the west ... we say goodbye to this enchanted paradise ..."

LOOSE ENDS

The Whole Conservative Party Policy: A Shift Leftward

OTTAWA: The Diefenbaker Government's gigantic program of expenditure in the next fiscal year means much more than its figures seem to suggest. It means, in the first place, that Finance Minister Fleming has lost his struggle to hold down the demands of his colleagues for more money. If, as is generally believed here, Mr. Fleming has been engaged in a direct contest with Mr. Diefenbaker for the control of the nation's purse, the finance minister has lost that contest, too. Canada's new spending program represents the views of a prime minister who—as his latest speeches clearly show—simply cannot believe in the danger of an inflationary crisis.

The financial implications of the program, the prospect of another huge budgetary deficit, more borrowings, more monetary inflation and perhaps more taxes are obvious. The political implications are not so easy to calculate but will develop later on.

Up to now the most significant recent change in the political climate is the growing anxiety of Canadian business even among leading businessmen who supported the Diefenbaker Government under the impression that it would be financially conservative.

Speeches by business leaders, the annual reports of the Canadian banks and the attitude of the business community in general all reflect sharp alarm over the upsurge in government spending, the budgetary deficit, the rise in interest rates and the loss of public confidence in government bonds.

The Diefenbaker Government, in short, has already begun to lose the confidence of big business, the historic political base of the Conservative Party. But this does not seem to alarm Mr. Diefenbaker in the least, for the simple reason that he is not and never has been a Conservative by historic definition.

Whatever the attitude of his predecessors may have been, Mr. Diefenbaker's political base is not big business but the little man—a wide base and a popular one.

He knows, and has frequently told his friends, that big business has few votes. His appeal, therefore, and the magic of his personality, have been directed at the masses in a fashion quite different from that of any former Conservative leader. He sees himself as the hero of the little man and his fiscal views, as now revealed, are designed to strengthen that position however they may antagonize business.

The whole position of the Conservative Party, insofar as Mr. Diefenbaker can control it, is thus being re-oriented—roughly speaking, leftwards. This will not suit the real conservatives of his party, including no doubt some of his followers in Parliament and some members of his cabinet. But in this Government the prime minister's word is law as it never was under St. Laurent, King or even Bennett.

Though he knows little of economics and has had no experience in finance, Mr. Diefenbaker is a master of politics, as the Liberal Party now admits, ruefully and rather late. Being a superb politician, he unquestionably knows (as he had planned from the beginning) that his lunge leftwards is calculated to catch the Liberal Party off balance.

Their mildly radical clothes stolen by Mr. Diefenbaker while they were bathing, the Liberals face an acute political danger. As soon as they protest the financial extravagance and inflationary course of the Government Mr. Diefenbaker will accuse them of being the friends of the big interests and the enemies of the little man.

This, it is safe to predict, will be the next play in the battle of parliamentary politics. In short, Mr. Diefenbaker is happily engaged in the project of reversing the whole traditional pattern of our politics.

Though he has been amazingly successful so far, his project is not as simple or as easy as it looks. For there will be a high price to pay for his financial and social policies and, in the end, no one but the little man will pay it. He may pay it in the short run by higher taxes which seldom increase a government's popularity. Unless the present inflationary drift is halted, he will pay it in the long run through higher prices.

There is no escape for the little man whether he realizes it or not, since the money to finance Mr. Diefenbaker's unprecedented spending cannot be found in the higher income brackets. It simply isn't there. Moreover, if the

NEW DESIGN

Toast Racks

THE publicity men made it clear that Mr. Gaitskell has been interested in modern furniture for a long time. It was apparently just a coincidence that he chose on Monday—on the heels of his appearances in Wales and Northern Ireland—to pay his first visit to the Design Centre in the Haymarket. Almost as an afterthought the invitation extended that the Leader of the Opposition would be willing "to talk to the press in the conference room later."

The press picked its way gingerly through the graceful crockery, fabrics, and armchair to confront an affable politician accompanied by his wife wearing a lemon yellow hat.

They seemed delighted to answer questions about their "good solid Victorian house in Hampstead" and to explain how sorry they were they had not toured the Centre before they knocked "those small rooms into a new kitchen"; how Mr. Gaitskell liked the bathroom exhibits; and how pleased Mrs. Gaitskell was to see on display the same saucers she had picked up at Llanelli.

He was happy to share a joke about redecorating No. 10 while his wife described the stainless steel toast rack downstairs.

Later, as a group of reporters examined—with a touch of awe—the exhibit which may one day decorate the Hampstead breakfast table, an official-sounding voice was heard to boom, "He's really very friendly, you know. It's silly to expect him to drink pints of beer like the Prime Minister. He's just not the beer-drinking sort."

Government concentrates its taxes on business they will be handed on, in the form of prices, to the little man.

These prospects don't seem to disturb the Prime Minister. His first speech of the present session showed an extraordinary technical misunderstanding (real or assumed) of the nature of the present financial crisis, despite the arguments and protests of business men.

For example, he contended that the inflation of the last year, a rise of about 2½ per cent in retail prices, was not nearly so large as the rise of the immediate postwar years, though the two situations are not comparable.

The postwar price rise, temporarily restrained by wartime price controls, merely expressed the huge monetary inflation of the war years when the nation could not pay all its current bills out of taxes. The hidden wartime dynamite exploded in the first years of peace.

Again, we suffered some inflation during the great business boom which ended in 1957. It was surprisingly little, considering the familiar pressure of too much money chasing too few goods. Today, however, the situation is entirely different. We have inflation, stemming mainly out of the Government's deficits, at a time of business recession—a unique paradox.

Yet Mr. Diefenbaker is not worried, or he doesn't admit it if he is, because for the moment at least he is on the popular side of the paradox and the Liberals, if they are not careful, will find themselves on the unpopular side as the enemies of the little man.

Freedom of Will

We frequently hear the claim made that man, the human species, is gifted with, or has developed or acquired, freedom of will.

Unfortunately for that belief, or idea, prominent students of present-day trends in human affairs seem to question that claim. We are told that Dr. Brock Chisholm, former head of the World Health Organization, warns of the danger of present tremendously increasing world population to human survival. This is certainly a problem involving and demanding freedom of will.

Another almost equal danger to human survival is increasing criminal and mental illness, or derangement, due solely to economic and environmental conditions changeable only through exercise of will, so far definitely lacking in evidence or effect.

A third impending crisis immediately facing human survival is the danger to world peace. The frightening prospect of nuclear annihilation, and in which due to fanatical nationalism, freedom of will has no place or part. Mass humanity today, ignoring pending crises, ignoring positive blocks to future survival, refusing to exercise thought or to exert will in human interest, pays greater attention to games of bingo, to soccer, to sweepstakes, horse racing or car driving, while freedom of will, or of thought, concerning pending crisis is relegated to the background.

'Social Leveler'

Some time back Ed Murrow had millions of listeners for his radio program "This I Believe". Now I've come upon a great book giving, in brief, the personal beliefs of 22 of the modern world's greatest men—Einstein, Russell, Dewey, Millikan, Jeans, Hu Shih, et al. While digesting this exciting volume of brain food, perhaps I may be permitted to pass along to your readers weighty passages encountered in this reading? And I would like to start with the co-author of that monumental work "Science of Life", the late H. G. Wells, saying:

"If I am something of a social leveler, it is not because I want to give silly people a good time, but because I want to make opportunity universal, and not leave out one single being who is worth while. If I want economic change, it is because the present system protects and fosters a vast swarm of wasteful spenders, no better in their quality and much worse in their lazy pretentious traditions than the general run of mankind."

"If I am opposed to nationalism and war, it is not merely because these things represent an immense waste of energy, but because they sustain a cant of blind discipline and loyalty and a paraphernalia of flags, uniforms and parades that shelter a host of particularly mischievous, unintelligent bullies and wasters; because they place our lives at the mercy of trained blockheads."

"Militarism and warfare are childish things—but more horrible than anything childish can be. They must become things of the past. They must die. Naturally my idea of politics is an open conspiracy to hurry these tiresome, wasteful, evil things—nationality and war—out of existence; to end this empire and that empire, and set up the one Empire of Man."

Pleasing Prospect

It is with a sense of relief that the members of the Prospect Lake and District Community Association and the residents of this area generally note that the Department of Recreation and Conservation is considering the matter of curbing speedboats on the smaller lakes.

It is now six years since the threat of high-powered boats first manifested itself on this lake, Prospect. Ever since that time we have endeavored to get some action on their control.

It is true that the Federal Government has passed legislation regarding them being handled safely, and the local police, and Mounted Police have assured us that any properly lodged complaint would be pursued by them to the punishment of the offender.

However, in such a small community people hesitate to lodge such necessary complaint, and they have continued to suffer at the hands of a few thoughtless and irresponsible persons.

Weekends and long summer evenings have been largely taken over by a few boats driven at high speed, towing skiers, and then all other boating activity comes practically to a standstill, as the high-speed operators show little or no regard for right-of-way to sail, paddle or row, let alone the possible swimmer.

We do not wish to see power boats banned, as there are sundry elderly people who cannot propel a boat by manpower, who enjoy a leisurely prow around the lake, and others who fish for hours at a slow speed, naturally.

The worst offenders have been non-residents, who do their best to ruin the pleasure of a much larger number of people, and I can assure you they have succeeded.

MRS. D. M. STEWARD.

Power Estimates

An Ottawa report written by your Mr. Bruce Hutchison, on your front page of Feb. 5, says: "The plan of simultaneous exploitation of the Columbia and Peace rivers makes no sense in the economics." It carries on to say that the plan would provide British Columbia with a surplus of power for the visible future."

In our view this all too lightly disposes of an extremely important matter. Adequate power supply for the future cannot be left to chance.

A careful projection of power needs (excluding large industrial loads like Alcan at Kitimat) indicates the following requirements:

1950 — 4½ million kilowatts.
1970 — 4 million kilowatts.
1980 — 10 million kilowatts.

General McNaughton, meanwhile, has said that the upper Columbia would give about 3.6 million kilowatts, and about another million of downstream benefits, which it is hoped will be divided between Canada and the United States. The power from the Columbia obviously would fall considerably short of meeting the B.C. utility requirements beyond 1975.

In the face of these facts an integrated development of feasible power sources within the province would indeed seem economic and prudent.

Children of Our Times

TWO more local boys are in trouble for detonating explosives which the authorities believe are too powerful for the youngsters to handle and have been set off in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Adults take a sour view of these incidents. They regard them as unconscious invitations by the boys to serious injury, if nothing worse. Such unauthorized blast-offs take on the character of delinquent acts, their perpetrators are seen, at the worst, as hoodlums.

The latest pair of youngsters involved in explosions consider themselves to be "amateur rocket enthusiasts." One of their parents, says they live, eat and sleep rocketry. They devour science publications on the subject, hang over the television screen when programs centre on this explosive interest, and send away to United States sources for plans of rockets and other information on them.

Then, after making their own concoctions and engineering their own missiles, they slip away to conduct tests contrary to the law.

This juvenile absorption in explosives is not new, though it has a mid-twentieth century twist.

Anyone who lived around Foul Bay a generation ago remembers a parallel. At that time the shore quiet of a winter afternoon used to be blown apart by the blast of a primitive cannon.

The weapon had been manufactured in a basement not far from Margaret Jenkins School. Its muzzle-loading barrel was a piece of brass pipe, stopped at one end by a plug. Its base was a block of wood to which the pipe had been stapled. A hole had been drilled near the lower end of the pipe and the canon was set off by the old touch light method.

The gun crew would crouch behind logs while one of its number applied the light. After the shot, there would be a scramble to recover the cannon and a quick retreat to avoid detection when householders turned out to see what had happened.

Firing it was, I believe, illegal. And it was fired until the base of the pipe blew into a big bubble and someone confiscated it. No doubt similar practices were followed in many other regions of the town. Kids and explosives have an affinity akin to kids and apple orchards.

What the youngsters who picture themselves as modern rocketeers are doing is a refinement of the activities of an earlier generation. And kids have been blowing themselves up, I guess, since the Chinese invented gunpowder.

That doesn't make the practice any less dangerous today. No doubt, with the improvement in fuels, it is more hazardous. For the protection of the youngsters themselves, this unregulated amateur rocketry has to be discouraged.

Police action, with strict penalties, is one form of discouragement. It probably will not eliminate these experiments—any more than police action did in the past. But even if it cuts down on the number of youngsters who take chances with explosives they do not fully understand, is that the best way of handling the situation?

This, we're told constantly, is the space age. Boys who devote all their time, energy and talents to making rockets and trying them out, are surely the children of their time.

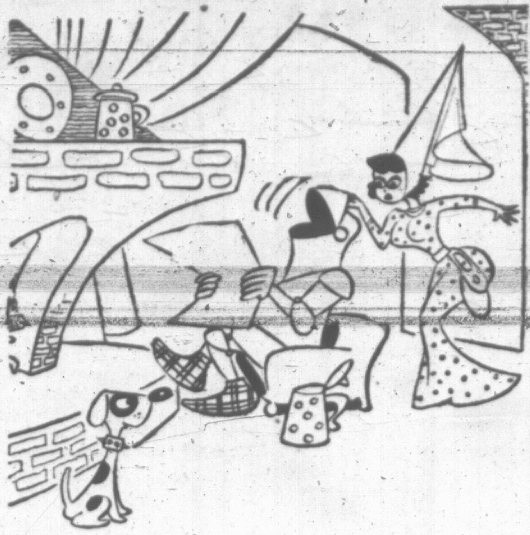

Isn't it possible that they're showing potentials which might very well be encouraged, under adequate supervision, in the interests of future rocket making?

What, asks one interested person, would Russia do with boys like these? Would she turn them over to the police, or would she encourage the development of their talents for national use?

On the same line of thought, wouldn't it be better to recognize these boys as something more than young hoods and feed their appetite for science with good, competent instruction?

There appear to be enough of the youngsters available to form clubs. Their interest seems sufficiently genuine to justify some serious study. Under competent leadership they might conceivably become excellent technicians, if not scientists, equipped to meet the problems of the space age.

Is it wiser to forbid or to direct the activities of youngsters engrossed in this absorbing interest of our day?

'Forget the Debt Help the People'

The provincial government was charged in the legislature Monday with being "so anxious to get ready for an election that it has forgotten human beings."

George Gregory, Liberal MLA for Victoria, speaking in the budget debate, advised Premier Bennett to abandon his idea of paying off the direct debt of the province before it is due, until after the needs of the people have been met.

Mr. Gregory was referring to Premier Bennett's budget statement that the direct debt of the province will be paid off by March 31, 1960.

"Why are we in such a hurry to pay off this debt?" he asked.

Mr. Gregory said there could be only two reasons:

1. To secure lower interest rates on future loans.
2. To impress voters in the election which "might be coming along."

He called attention to the huge increase in what the premier called "contingent liabilities" as, distinct from direct debt.

"There is only one set of taxpayers in this province," Mr. Gregory said, "and we have to pay off our debts whether they are called contingent liabilities or anything else."

He noted from the budget speech that the Pacific Great Eastern Railway is now returning "a substantial operating profit."

"But," he added, "even a well-run railway like the PGE is bound to show depreciation and something must be set aside for that depreciation."

"Until there is enough revenue to do this, we cannot truthfully say the railway is operating at a profit."

Something must be done to help the municipalities, Mr. Gregory continued, and he noted that Premier Bennett (as finance minister) has budgeted to take "in the same income as last year."

He said the municipalities' only source of revenue, apart from the "trifling" business tax, was tax on the land and what they could get from the provincial government.

"I suggest there is now a limit on what can be raised by taxes on the land. The municipalities are completely in the hands of the provincial government."

Mr. Gregory insisted that the government "is not showing a proper appreciation of the plight in which the municipalities find themselves."

Park Board Grant Refused

The provincial cabinet has turned down a recommendation of the Capital Improvement District Commission for a $28,000 grant toward cost of a new road at the Cadboro Bay park development.

The grant would have enabled Saanich to make an early start on a long-range plan for a $100,000 road park at Cadboro Bay.

The plan, created by A. L. Parr, Saanich town planner, calls for the development of 17 acres with 850 feet of frontage on the beach.

It includes the existing Gyro Park property of 4.37 acres.

Reeve George Chatterton told a Saanich parks committee meeting Monday he had been informed by CIDC the cabinet refused to assist the project.

Despite the setback, the committee decided to go ahead with its plans for developing a major park in the area.

Members agreed to recommend to council the launching of expropriations proceedings to acquire 400 feet of privately-owned property fronting the bay.

They also will ask Gyro Club members, staunch supporters of the project, for financial assistance in acquiring additional property.

The committee agreed with Reeve Chatterton that the bulk of the park funds this year should be used to buy property for the development.

The treatment of Eczema

Outstanding results in many countries

Thanks to the outstanding results obtained with "F99" these preparations have gained, in only a few years, a solid reputation throughout the world. The "F99" preparations are now available in drug stores in more than 65 countries from Iceland to the Argentine and from Canada to India. In all these countries "F99" is being used with remarkable results even in cases where all ordinary treatments have failed.

Two-way treatment

In cases of Eczema, Furunculosis, Leg Ulcers and Infantile Eczema ask for the "F99" two-way treatment in drug stores

Internal treatment: Take one "F99" Capsule daily to help suppress the underlying cause of the complaint by means of the blood stream.

For children use the "F99" Liquid instead of the Capsules.

External treatment: Apply daily the "F99" Ointment which penetrates the affected skin from the outside.

"F99" is so easily assimilated by the body that it can even be given to infants.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Keep a Health Record

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

More than once in this column I have told of the advisability of a person's having a health record kept, in the early years by his mother, and, in the later years by himself. For instance, every so often a man comes in who has been exposed to mumps and is much afraid of getting a spell that may injure him. He is very unhappy because he doesn't know whether he ever had the disease in childhood. His mother is dead, and so he cannot appeal to her for information.

In many cases, a person comes in with a number of queer sensations which suggest a mild form of epilepsy without fits. Perhaps, after much questioning, a woman will say that she has a faint memory of once hearing that her mother used to faint easily and often, or she thinks her mother once said that her father used to faint easily. In such a case the making of the diagnosis would be so much easier if I could only know what those fainting spells were like. If I only knew that sometimes the mother or the grandmother had fallen so heavily that she had broken a bone or knocked out a tooth or cut her scalp I would now be pretty sure of the diagnosis of epilepsy.

Or, perhaps, here comes the lovely daughter of the woman I have just described, much upset because she had heard a rumor that her beau's grandfather and an uncle had curious symptoms that could have been mild manifestations of epilepsy. But the grandfather and uncle are dead, and no one knows exactly what their "spells" were like. The girl has sense enough to know that if she and her beau marry, both carrying a gene for epilepsy, three out of four of their children could have some nervous trouble. If only the two people each had a good record of their family health!

Today there comes to my desk a book called, "A Lifetime Health Record" by Professor David D. Ruthstein of Harvard. This book is the best that I have seen of this type, because it has plenty of room for notes on the many facts which ought to be recorded in a book of this type. The one criticism that I might make is that there ought to be many more pages devoted to notes on the illnesses of the patient's forebears—not only his parents and grandparents, but uncles, aunts, cousins, and nephews and nieces.

The idea is a good one and perhaps some day 100 years from now all really educated people will be keeping such a family record.

Some people tell me they have been using mineral oil every night for years; and they say it has worked well as a laxative. Now they want to know why, after it has worked so well for months or years, it has begun to come through all by itself, sometimes to soil their clothes. I don't know. Usually, I think the oil works best in the form of an emulsion. It is less likely, then, to come through the bowel unmixed with the feces.

Some people get alarmed when they are told that the mineral oil eventually will injure them in some way. I once looked up the literature on this subject for some medical group, and although I found that in animals a small amount of the oil gets through the bowel wall, and remains in some lymph nodes and in the liver, I could not find any information to show that this oil ever did the person harm.

The laughter-filled, glamorous, intimate story

My Husband, ARTHUR MURRAY

What's it like being married to a temperamental yet charming, generous but penny-pinching, shy yet publicity-seeking genius?

In The Saturday Evening Post this week you'll read Kathryn Murray's very honest, very surprising story of her life with Arthur. You'll learn:

- of their hilarious first dance.
- how it feels for a grandmother to become a TV star at 50, and to have her husband as her boss.
- why Arthur has had one of the stormiest careers in TV history.
- what really goes on in Arthur's dance studios.
- how he taught a British dance instructor the Black Bottom by transatlantic phone.
- what it's like for a shy boy who grew up in poverty to teach celebrities how to dance.

It's the most fascinating story you've read in years. Don't miss the first installment of the five-part story, "My Husband, Arthur Murray."

'Name the Gangsters'

Government members in the B.C. legislature were challenged Monday to name provincial labor leaders who were broadly labeled "irresponsible" in some of their speeches last week.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan said Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi inferred there were gangsters among B.C. trade union leaders. "Who are they?" demanded Mr. Strachan.

He told the House that at a recent convention every B.C. Teamsters' delegate voted against James Hoffa, international president of that union, associated with gangsterism in some U.S. unions.

YEARLY ELECTIONS
He said the rank and file of B.C. trade unions elect or reject their leaders every year. He said the CCF, in its efforts to enlist labor support, would oppose any labor corruption.

"Just as we of the CCF have opposed corruption in politics, corruption in business, so we will oppose corruption in trade unions, if it ever shows its face in B.C."

He said he knew what had brought on the government attack on labor—a craven fear of their own political defeat.

He added: "They'd rather see the trade union movement in B.C. wrecked, than take their just defeat at the polls."

DOING NOTHING

B.C. trade unions are at the point where they realize they must take greater interest in politics and they are taking political action because Labor Minister Lyle Wicks has been doing nothing to assist them.

No wonder the government lives in "fear and trembling."

Mr. Strachan said if a new party is born of an alliance between the CCF and organized labor, no union worker would contribute toward political action unless he volunteered.

He was interrupted several times by Don Robinson (SCLC), who said "You're one," when Mr. Strachan asked the irresponsible labor leaders be named.

BILL SEEKS HYDRO BAN ON FRASER

OTTAWA (CP)—Victoria Conservative MP A. deB. McPhillips, Monday introduced a private bill in the Commons to ban hydro-electric power development on the salmon-rich Fraser River.

This bill is simply designed to protect the navigation and the salmon fishery on the Fraser River in British Columbia," Mr. McPhillips said.

The bill does not apply to any project of the federal government on navigation or flood control.

Citizens Ask for Library

A strong plea for establishment of a library in Oak Bay was voiced before municipal council Monday by Clarence Goode, 3190 Ripon.

The proposal would not cost more than the $33,600 paid Victoria for the loan of 112,416 books in the last year, he said.

The city even now is trying to commit us to 13 years on contract, which in our view would be fatal to our future," he said.

Mr. Goode was speaking on behalf of 13 Oak Bay residents.

HELP ELDERLY

Establishment of a library would be a great convenience for elderly residents and students, he said.

Secretary of the Oak Bay Board of Trade, John Weicker, backed the proposal in a letter to council.

"It is the general opinion of our executive that the downtown facilities do not cater adequately to the reading needs of our children, wives and older people of Oak Bay."

In other council business, dogs running loose in the municipality came under fire of Coun. Robinson.

He said they damaged gardens and proved a traffic hazard. The dog-catcher will be asked to attend to the matter.

A retired physician, Dr. A. D. Bechtel, said the proposed new breakwater from Turkey Head to near Mary-Tod Island would result in a "cesspool."

He said council would have no control of boats anchoring there and refuse disposal would cause stagnation.

In a letter, Dr. Bechtel said "the sanitation will be dangerous as the outgoing tide will not clear the bay of litter."

The problem of parking for students' cars also came under discussion on receipt of a letter from Gordon Schneck, 746 Linkleas.

He said "as a parent I suggest it is indolent for parents to permit their strapping youths to ride to school in cars."

Coun. Robinson said he favored daytime parking restrictions on streets surrounding schools to force students to leave their cars at home.

Reeve George Murdoch said it was not council's intention to provide parking facilities for students' cars, nor was it a municipal responsibility.

He said, however, he had been informed that the Greater Victoria School Board planned to level off a parking area close to Oak Bay High.

BY

Doug Peden

A most puzzled fella these days is Senor Pat Egan, who is burning the midnight oil trying to chart a course that will take our Cougars safely into the Western Hockey League playoffs.

If the hard-rock coach could be certain the Cats will grab a third or fourth-place finish in the Coast Division scramble, he could cut down on his worrying time. But he's piloting a club that has been predictable only in its unpredictability while winning only six of its last 16 games.

It might be said that the Cougars have at least operated on a consistent pattern in the last few outings, losing and winning alternate games. However, they have appeared so inept while losing and so capable while winning neither Pat or anyone else can do more than guess what the next game will produce.

For all Egan knows, his charges may have embarked on a victory skunk at Seattle Sunday, or they may launch a losing streak when they take on Spokane at Memorial Arena Wednesday.

Wednesday's game is a big one for the Cats. A win would move them one point ahead of the Spokes in the battle for third place, with two games in hand. And although they are 10 healthy points ahead of New Westminster, a losing streak could be dangerous since the Royals are overdue to break loose for a string of triumphs.

It is conceded that Egan doesn't have the horses for an all-out drive, especially since injuries have sidelined some of his front-liners. But the Cougars were able to overcome a lot of difficulties in the first half of the season with desire and determination and six weeks ago were up near the top of the Coast circuit. Now the question is whether or not they can start another surge.

The manpower situation will be improved this week when George Ford and Stan Bialuk get back into action. But there is always the danger that the Cougars could become accustomed to losing. If they run into a series of setbacks, the spirit that has produced several rousing comebacks may fade. If that happens, the club will have lost its greatest weapon and Pat will have a real problem.

It's Time to Try Another System

Although the Cats have been going to extremes, most fans can understand that a club is bound to have both good and bad nights. However, few have been able to comprehend the lack of power in the Cougar power play.

Egan has done an excellent coaching job and there is good reason to believe he can keep his charges in the "we can beat those guys" way of thinking. There is reason to believe his system of using a pair of defencemen with a regular forward unit when the club has a manpower edge is based on sound strategy, but it says here that when one method has failed to produce results, it's time to try another.

We can't escape the bitter truth that the Cats have been scoring enough goals and that indifferent defensive work and uncertain goaltending must take the blame for some defeats in recent games. But the fact remains that at least a few games could have been salvaged this season with more punch in the power play.

The Cougars have had trouble carrying the puck into scoring position and passing well enough to set up good scoring chances while enjoying a manpower advantage. Goals have been given away when defencemen stubbornly trying to drive drill holes through opponents at close range, have had the puck rebound into centre ice and there hasn't been enough speed at the points to stay with rival forwards on resulting breakaways.

After All, There's Little to Lose

Weaknesses were never more apparent than Saturday, when the Canucks scored three breakaway goals on their way to an 8-4 triumph. Although power-play passing was more efficient than usual, the Cats failed to score and gave up two tallies while they had an extra man.

Pat might consider using Al Nicholson and Ford or Bialuk as wingers for centre Gordie Haworth on the power-play and working Doug Anderson and Doug Macauley, a pair of clever forwards who think defensively, at the points.

Anderson packs a booming shot and Macauley sometimes gets a deceptive amount of steam into his drives. But, more important, both have the knack of passing the puck safely, both can carry the puck well and, although neither is a body-checker, they can get back in a hurry on defence.

This would leave the line of Enio Scisizzi, Gordie Wilson and Billy Forhan available for regular duty or penalty-killing chores.

You can pick a flock of flaws in the set-up, but a change should be worth a try. As the man said, what have we got to lose?

Fans at last Saturday's game made a generous gesture when they contributed $351 to the fund being collected by the Cougar Fan Club for Bill Dobbey, former Victoria and Vancouver defenceman who lost an eye in an American Hockey League game on Dec. 27.

The money will be presented during a "Bill Dobbey Night" game at Buffalo next Tuesday between Buffalo Bisons and team of National Hockey League stars.

The Cougar management and players are adding $100 and further donations may be submitted to the hockey club office in the Hudson's Bay Company or to this writer until the fund closes Saturday. Donations sent to the Times sports department will be acknowledged in this space and turned over to the fan club.

VIKING VIEWS

By IAN SMITH

This is the crucial week for three Victoria College basketball teams. The week in which they must win or be left by the wayside in the hunt for titles.

Of top importance, of course, will be the Vikings' best-of-five Senior "A" series with Alberni Athletics.

After Vikings' dismal showing against Victoria High School Totems in the Inter-scholastic Tournament on Saturday it must be admitted that for even the most ardent fan, hope is at a low ebb.

But the V's will still go out this Friday and Saturday at Central Junior High School in the first two games of the playoff.

Third game will be played in Port Alberni next week.

MORE OPTIMISM

Considerably more optimism is expressed for the chances of the Junior Vikings, however, in their search for the lower Vancouver Island championship.

The Junior V's play their first game of a two-game, total-point series with Chemainus tonight at Chemainus. Second game is scheduled Saturday at Central Junior High.

The Juniors must be given a good chance. While wrapping up the Victoria championship they were never in trouble as they humbled both Navy and Royal Roads in a round-robin series.

Third VC hoop team to begin playoff action this week will be the Vikettes, the college women's representative squad.

The Vikettes will tangle with Brentwood at Brentwood in the first game of a two-game, total-point series.

Junior Vikings and the Vikettes will have illustrious junior records to defend.

Last year the Vikings won the Canadian championship, while the Vikettes captured the provincial title.

The men's rugby Vikings continue to post a good record. Last week they blanked PPCL, 15-0, as Ed Kenney scored two tries.

Derek Hood, Jere Mitchell and Russ Chambers also scored tries.

Their Saturday game with Royal Roads was postponed due to weather conditions. This Saturday they are scheduled to meet PPCL again at Carnarvon Park.

Don Wilson and Barry Saunders will meet in the men's finals of the badminton's singles handicap tournament.

The women's section has not yet reached the final round.

The women's grass hockey team continues to win, turning in a 5-2 victory over Victoria Ladies Saturday at Victoria High School.

Heather Barnes led the VC team with three goals. Florence Goward netted twice.

College swimmers will compete against Royal Roads for the second time tonight at the Royal Roads pool. The last time the two squads met, the Cadets won handily.

Members of the College squad will be Mike Deans, Jon Stott, Roy Innes, Denis Field-walker, Don Erskine, Ed Kenney and Gerard Prinsen-burg.

Still surviving after one or more rounds in the men's table tennis tournament are Lyle Garraway, Ken Neal, Frank Bridges, Glen Stephen, Robin Daziel, Wilbert Jay, Stuart McFarlane, Ted Powell, Murray Holmes, Lorne Ross, Verna Smythe, Henry Roach, Ian Smith, Jan Mac-land and Barry Saunders.

In the women's section, Alice Genge, Elizabeth Roper, Val Lomas, Judy Cornwall, Laureen Bennett, Hilary Hale, Barrie Hanslip, Sandra Cameron, Theresa Aller, Roberta West and Diana Lawrence are still in contention.

Picked to the woman's volleyball team that will compete in the annual College-sponsored tournament with local high schools and the University of British Columbia later in the year were Helen Boffey, Val Lomas, Julie Beecroft, Irene Webb, Nelly Bing, Diana Lawrence, Eileen Morrissey and Judy Cornwall.

Spares are Alice Genge, Marg Somerville, Joy Holland and Colleen Hume.

FIGHT RESULTS

NEW YORK—Sietan Redi, 166, Pa-saic, N.J., outpointed Ernie (Sonny Boy) Williams, 166½, Washington, D.C.

PROVIDENCE, R.I.—Jackson Brown, 159½, Boston, outpointed Willie Greene, 159, Providence, R.I.

PARIS—Alphonse Halimi, France, stopped Pierre Cosensy, Belgium, (weights unavailable).

'Rocking Chair' May Get Busso

NEW YORK (UPI)—Thirty once was considered an impossible lightweight age, in a division where speed and stamina are at a premium, but Joe (Old Bones) Brown goes out again Wednesday night to make a sucker out of the averages.

Old "Rocking Chair" as Brown also is known, is the lightweight Archie Moore. The champion is 33, going on 35, and yet has made five title defenses in a little over two years.

He'll be a solid favorite on your television screen as he gives young Johnny Busso a shot at the crown down in Houston.

Busso may be regarded as somewhat of a threat, however. In an overweight bout three months ago he defeated "Old Bones" on what Brown described as "one of my lazy nights."

Brown, the one-time carpenter from Baton Rouge, La., merely raises his eyebrows at the cockiness of his 24-year-old rival. After all, this did not require a personal answer such as the time Kenny Lane called him an old stiff.

"Why for he badgering me?" Joe asked wonderingly before going out to give Lane a boxing lesson.

Another time, when there was a debate as to how many times Ralph Dupas, an added victim, had been counted out, Brown settled it with authority when he analyzed: "That don't cut no squash. I could have knocked him out five times if I had to."

Since losing to Busso, Brown, a combination boxer-puncher, has defended against Lane and kayoted Dupas, Orlando Echeverria, and Ernie Williams. He carries a horse-shoe in each glove.

"I knock 'em down with my right but I knock 'em out with my left," he grins.

CLIPPER STALWARTS

Accustomed to seeing Don Ashbee (left) and Arnie Dugan in livery of Nanaimo lacrosse club, Victoria fans are in for change of pace tonight. Sparkplugs of Nanaimo intermediate hockey team, they'll be in action at Memorial Arena when Clippers tackle Navy in opening round of Pacific Coast Playoffs.

Opening tonight's two-game program at 7:30 will be final game of Commercial Hockey League.

Finance Five Cash In With Top Fivepin Feat

Roy Clarke's Department of Finance team won the annual B.C. Government Employees' fivepin bowling tournament at Capital City Alleys Saturday with a 110-pin advantage over their nearest rivals, with a 5,238 total.

The quintet—Clarke, Jo Dodman, Mary Muir, Gil McInroy and Margaret Sing—bowled single games of 1,024, 1,009, 999, 1,149 and 1,057 for a 5,238 total to claim the towering R. W. Mayhew Trophy.

Woodward Trophy winner, for a second-place finish, was Harold Quissey's Department of Highways team at 5,128.

Third place, with a 5,072 score, went to Doug Elford's Department of Public Works team.

High men's series was swept by Bob Hodges, with a 1,344 total and a 269 average, while John Callan took high single with 375.

Leading the women were Barbara Burrows, with a 282 single, and Jo Dodman, with a 1,055 high five.

SAVE AS YOU GO!

IT'S THE MOST MODERN SIX ON WHEELS

Meteor Montcalm two-door hardtop, one of Ford of Canada's fine cars.

One of the best things about the '59 Meteor is the fact that you don't have to skimp to save. Here is the most beautiful Meteor ever built, the luxurious new Montcalm... a classic car in every sense of the word. And the beauty of it is that you can save money by owning it!

The reason, of course, is Canada's most modern six-cylinder engine—the Econ-O-Fuel Six. Years ahead of the rest, it has the extra sparkle of modern short-stroke design—the same principle that has made the Meteor Tempest V-8 a performance byword. And you don't save just because it's a six. You save because it's designed to economize—to give top performance on regular gas—and better mileage, too!

Performance plus economy—that's a mighty fine way to save. And there are others: Every Meteor offers you a standard oil filter that extends oil life up to 4,000 miles. An aluminum muffler, too, that lasts twice as long. And Canada's newest, simplest and lowest-priced automatic—Meteor's two-speed Econ-O-Matic drive.

In every one of sixteen Meteor models, including the classically beautiful Montcalm, you can save as you go! Isn't it time you started saving? Your nearest Meteor dealer has all the details—and some interesting facts about how much more Meteor offers. WEIGH THE FACTS—Meteor versus "the rest"—at your Meteor dealer's soon.

Certain features illustrated or mentioned, are standard on some models, optional at extra cost on others.

TOAST TO DICKENS

Hardship Sparked Literary Genius

Charles Dickens' literary genius was born out of hardship and frustration in his early life, Prof. R. J. Bishop, head of the English department at Victoria College, told the Dickens Fellowship of Victoria at its annual dinner in the YWCA-Saturday night. Without that hardship, he

241 MILES OF NEW ROAD

There were 241 miles of forest roads and 49 miles of trails built in B.C. in 1958, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston reported last week.

There are now 1,090 miles of forest roads and 733 miles of trails.

He gave the totals in reply to a question placed on the legislature order paper by John Squire (CCF, Alberni).

Processors Ask Better Tariff Guard

Lack of adequate tariff protection is holding back development of the food processing industry in Canada, especially fruits and vegetables, P. R. Robinson, manager of the 80-member Canadian Food Processors' Association, said Monday.

"Imports of processed fruits and vegetables, of a kind grown in Canada, clearly point up that we could be growing and processing more of these products," he told the 12th annual convention here of the CFPA.

The Canadian fruit and vegetable industry, he told the 100 delegates, "must be protected from importation of goods at distressed prices and given a tariff protection that will encourage capital investment in expansion of the industry."

There are more than 50,000 commercial growers of fruits and vegetables in Canada, he said.

The convention at the Empress Hotel, will continue through Wednesday when election of officers will be held.

MODERATOR of the United Church of Canada, Rt. Rev. Angus MacQueen, turned the first sod Saturday of the $750,000 Gorge View Homes Project. He is watched by Metropolitan United Church pastor, Rev. F. E. H. James with church and civic officials. Construction of the homes for senior citizens starts this week on a five-acre plot at Harriet and Balfour.

ask Andy

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Carolyn Ogger, age 11, Bossier City, La., for her question:

Are birds related to reptiles?

The experts tell us that our lovely feathery birds are descended from animals who were reptiles. The earliest bird, so far as we know, appeared on the scene about 125 million years ago. He was definitely a reptile and he lived in the Age of Reptiles.

The fossil bones of this early bird, were found in Bavaria. He has been named Archaeopteryx, which in simple language means Ancient-Winged One. We know that this fellow had feathers, for his imprint was left on the rocks that sheltered his fossil bones. Were it not for those feather imprints, the bones of the early bird might have been mistaken for those of a lizard.

He had a lizard's head with a long jaw full of teeth. He had a long lizard tail and his front limbs ended in claws. But in place of lizard scales he had feathers. His body was feathered and a fringe of stiff pinions grew down each side of his long tail. His front limbs were attached to his sides with strips of skin covered with feathers. These were his wings, fringed like his tail with a border of stiff feathers. The ancient winged one could fly but perhaps not very far or very fast. However, with his claws and stiff-feathered wings he was able to scramble through the ancient jungles with the greatest of ease.

Bird fossils are not easy to find. A bird is a light animal—has to be in order to fly. His bones are hollow and clothing is, of course, as light as feathers. Because of this lightness, his remains soon decay, break up and disappear. The fossil remains of birds do not endure as well as, say, the fossil remains of mammals and dinosaurs. However, enough fossil remains have been found to supply the missing links between the bird family and the reptiles.

Still Boasted Fierce Teeth

Buffalo Bill helped to find one of these ancient bird ancestors. He acted as the scout for a scientific expedition into Kansas. On this field trip, the remains of an ancient diving bird were found. He was named Hesperornis, meaning the Western Bird. Hesperornis came along much later than the ancient winged one. He thrived some 90 million years ago when Kansas was a region of swamps and marshes.

Hesperornis was more like a bird and less like a reptile than was Archaeopteryx. Nevertheless, he could hardly pass for a modern bird. For one thing, he had a mouthful of fierce teeth.

Today, there are more than 8½ million different birds in the world and none of them have teeth. It is believed that teeth went out of fashion in the bird world about 60 or 70 million years ago. By this time they had also lost their wing claws and become warm-blooded animals. However, like their ancient lizard ancestors, birds still lay eggs.

Andy sends a Hammond's Ambassador World Atlas to Terry Darnell Nutt, age 13, Lena, Miss., for his question: DOES THE CRUST OF THE EARTH MOVE?

The crust of the earth fits as snugly as the skin of an orange. However, it is a rather wrinkled and bumpy skin. It humps up into high mountains and swoops down in deep hollows to form the ocean basins. It varies in thickness from about 30 miles to about 60 miles. This crust is, of course, made of rocks. To us, they seem heavy. But we are told that they are light enough to float, as it were, on much heavier rocks below.

The experts also tell us that the crust of the earth may be cracked. It may be broken into huge slabs, somewhat like monster ice floes. Though there are no gaps between these coastal blocks, they do press against one another. They also seem to move. In California, one great coastal block is moving in a southerly direction and its neighbor is moving in a northerly direction. Where these two blocks meet and push against each other we have an earthquake fault. Parts of the earth's crust do move, but very slowly, no more than an inch or two a year.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

Conciliation Boards Attacked As 'Destructive'

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—Fred Fieber, a vice-president of District No. 1 of the International Woodworkers of America, Monday told delegates to the district's annual convention here that conciliation boards have almost destroyed labor-management bargaining.

"Conciliation boards are the tool of the employers, put in their hands by a government unfavorable to labor," he said.

He said 1958 saw many strikes and lockouts and each had its roots in the conciliation board.

A resolution from the Prince George, B.C., local called for removal of the conciliation board from bargaining procedure. It urged that a conciliation officer's report should be the one submitted to both parties in place of a board report.

The resolutions committee counselled that in view of moves being made by employers for restrictive legislation, this was not the proper time to have boards abolished.

'ROCK' BANNED

NEW WESTMINSTER — This city will sanction no more rock 'n' roll dances.

The police commission made this ruling Monday after hearing a report from Chief Constable Charles Mackie that he would sign no more permits for such dances on city-owned properties.

On being told there were 14 bouncers at the last rock 'n' roll dance, Mayor Beth Woods, commission chairman, said: "Any dance that has to have that many bouncers shouldn't be held in the first place."

UBC EDITORS FREED

VANCOUVER — Editor-in-chief David Robertson and city editor Kerry Feltham of the University of British Columbia newspaper, The Ubyssey, have been suspended from their positions for their part in the two-month disappearance of a $150 painting from the Brock Hall art collection on the UBC campus.

Feltham and Robertson said the painting was taken as a prank and was to have been returned shortly. Feltham said students had been apathetic about the two-year-old collection of paintings in the student union building and he and Robertson had wanted to see if anyone would notice that a painting was missing.

DOUKHOBOR REVOLT?

VANCOUVER — The Sun says a split within the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor ranks is widening over the announced intention of the leaders to "kill in self defence."

The newspaper says this is the second major conflict within the Freedomite's group in the southern interior of B.C. in less than a year.

The last break was over schooling. While four leaders were in Russia seeking a new homeland, a young girl convinced a group of mothers they should send their children to school voluntarily.

"The same group involved in the school rift," the newspaper says, "are now leading the revolt against the murder threats issued in a statement of policy by the elders of the Freedomite community."

WICKS DEFENDS POLICY

VANCOUVER—Labor Minister Lyle Wicks said Monday the federal government's winter employment-aid program amounted to only $6,000,000, while $90,000,000 in federal funds was spent on interest charges and refinancing.

Mr. Wicks made the statement as he defended Social Credit's employment policies before 300 delegates attending the International Woodworkers of America convention here.

He said municipal assistance, hospital construction, school construction and development of the B.C. Power Commission gave an employment program unequalled in Canada.

Budget Hoax, Fiction Lambasted by Strachan

CCF Leader Robert Strachan opened the budget debate in the legislature Monday by describing the premier's accounting as a hoax, a fiction, and proof of government failure.

He said:

1. The premier's claim of no direct debt by 1960 is misleading because the government will be paying 50 per cent of the gross provincial school debt of $86,929,400 for at least 20 years.
2. He said a $2,000,000 annual payment to the B.C. Toll Bridges and Highways Authority also must be classed as direct debt.
3. Leading Canadian financial firm, Wood, Gundy & Co., had objected to a Social Credit advertisement which implied the firm supported the premier's financing.
4. Thousands of B.C. taxpayers are paying more property taxes now than in 1956, despite the $28 homeowner's rebate.
5. B.C.H.S. authorities are forcing hospitals to hold the line on costs to the extent hospital workers are being denied pension and medical coverage—which the members of the legislature voted for their own protection.
6. The budget appropriation for forest service has failed again to meet the recommendations of the last reports of the late Gordon Sloan, government forestry adviser.
7. Despite some small improvements for agriculture, the budget reflects "no real reaching out to help the farmers of B.C."

'This Is Debt'

Mr. Strachan challenged the statement of Premier Bennett that his direct debt would be completely paid up this year. He recalled that within his "contingent liabilities" debt structure, the premier had borrowings of $86,929,400—school debt of which the government is committed to pay 50 per cent.

"This is debt. Money for which bonds were issued, bonds on which there are interest coupons, this is debt, money owed on which interest will be paid," repeated Mr. Strachan. "An absolute responsibility of the province, we said that we'd pay. We will be paying it for at least 20 years."

He said the annual payment of this debt is hidden each year in the premier's budget.

The province also is committed to paying 2½ per cent of the indebtedness of the B.C. Toll Bridges and Highways Authority, said Mr. Strachan. This also must be classed as direct debt.

More Juggling?

"This means we will be paying about 50 per cent of the toll authority capital charges. How's he going to juggle that around?"

Okanagan Lake, Agassiz-Rosedale and Nelson Bridges are losing money, he said. If these bridges can't pay their way, then the government would have to exercise its guarantee of the debt—out of tax funds.

The opposition leader showed a full-page advertisement placed in some B.C. papers by the Social Credit party last week. It said the recent report of Wood, Gundy & Co. "Clearly shows Premier Bennett right on B.C. finances."

"For years," said Mr. Strachan, "the premier has been looking for some firm of chartered accountants to say he's right."

Then Mr. Strachan read a newspaper report that Wood, Gundy & Co. publicly dissociated themselves from the advertisement.

$21 Worse Off

Not only that, but the same firm in the Financial Post set the 1958 debt of British Columbia at $440,000,000.

Mr. Strachan cited the case of a man who paid $70.85 annual property tax in 1956 and after the $28 homeowners' grant was announced found his tax bill jumped to $120.

"He's $21.13 worse off than before the grant was announced, due to increased assessment and changes in the Public Schools Act."

"This is being duplicated in thousands of instances."

Turning to hospitals, Mr. Strachan said:

"The minister says we don't interfere with hospital boards, they do as they please. But we know government controllers go through the hospital books with a fine tooth comb."

He quoted from a letter from Health Minister Eric Martin to provincial hospital boards advising costs should be held to the 1958 level.

No Guarantees

Some hospitals in negotiations with employees had granted fringe benefits. The minister said he could give no guarantees extra funds would be available in 1959.

Mr. Strachan interpreted this as an interference with union bargaining.

He said requests for pensions, medical and unemployment insurance were involved. He reminded the House in 1955

MLAs voted themselves medical coverage and a pension after three terms in office.

Then we say to the people who work in these hospitals, you can't have this.

"I ask the minister not to ask the hospital workers of B.C. to subsidize the hospitals of B.C."

New Pigeonhole

On forestry, the CCF leader deplored the fact that the estimates indicate "a carpenter was working somewhere building a pigeonhole for the Sloan report."

The appropriation for new tree planting on crown lands was cut this year from $511,000 to $488,000.

He recalled the late Gordon Sloan was paid tribute by almost every member during the Throne Speech debate.

"One member (John Tisdalle-SC, Saanich) wanted to put a plaque on a tree in his memory."

"The greatest tribute we could pay him would be to follow through on the recommendations of his last report."

Mr. Strachan said he could appreciate the increased grant in agriculture to assist farmers in land clearing, a vote for pest control and construction of potato warehouses.

No Real Help

But agricultural engineering services, "one of the services B.C. farmers want most and some research services, had been reduced in the new budget."

"It makes it obvious, there was no real reaching out to help the farmers of B.C.—even the McPhee report was ignored."

The McPhee report on the tree fruit industry was completed last month by Dean Angus McPhee of UBC. Its various recommendations were aimed at rebuilding the industry.

WORD GAME SPARKED BY BENNETT BUDGET

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan described the new Bennett budget Monday as a "hoax and a Shibboleth."

The dictionary says a Shibboleth is a "catch-word or formula adopted by a party or sect, by which their adherents or followers may be discerned, or those not their followers may be excluded."

But government financial adviser, Dr. J. V. Fisher, takes another meaning.

"It is from the old Hebrew, meaning the horn of plenty," he said later.

Mr. Strachan goes along with the Shorter Oxford.

Frost's Flag Causes Flutter But Precious Little Agreement

By TONY DICKASON

Ask a half-dozen people here what they think about a national flag for Canada, and out come a half-dozen different answers.

There is only slim agreement on the fact a flag is necessary.

Officials of Victoria groups contacted today in a sort of "flag poll" were asked what they thought of Ontario Premier Leslie Frost's creation—carried on the front page of the Times Monday—a Red Ensign with 10 maple leaves representing the provinces, bordering Canada's coast-of-arms.

Some were cool to Mr. Frost, others warmly in favor.

C. A. Gill, secretary, Pro Patria branch, Canadian Legion, said: "I like the thing. It's balanced nicely and is quite appropriate. But this is my own personal opinion, not that of the branch."

A. A. Cownden, secretary, Naval Veterans' branch of the Legion, said branch members were "quite content" with the present Red Ensign, without anybody fiddling around with it.

(Premier Frost said his addition of the maple leaves was accomplished by "doodling.")

Secretary of the 2,400-member Britannia branch of the Canadian Legion, W. J. Kane, said the flag question will come up for discussion at an executive meeting Thursday, and recommendations would be passed to the membership at a later date.

Personally, regarding Mr. Frost's flag submission, he said: "I rather like it, as the flag represents all the provinces. I especially like the Union Jack in the corner as we can't forget our connections with the Commonwealth."

He added: "Now is the time to push—to have a voice from this area in Ottawa on the flag situation."

—Victoria and Vancouver Island publicity commissioner, George Warren, who has seen many flags flying during many decades, was artistically critical only of the suggested flag of Canada.

"It's all right, except the Union Jack on the flag should be definite. It needs a white line around it to make it stand out. Of course I feel Canada should have a national flag of its own."

Mrs. A. Warren Smith, president of the local IOOE chapter, termed the flag "rather pretty."

"The addition of the maple leaves certainly adds distinction. I like it. As we need an official flag, this looks good."

The IOOE is on record as approving adoption of the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag.

R. D. McLachlan, secretary of the Victoria branch, Native Sons of Canada, was critical of the entire flag conception, though admitting "as a flag, it is very nice."

"I don't think we need the maple leaves around the coat-of-arms as they are already included in the coat-of-arms. The Red Ensign is only a colonial flag anyway, and I think Premier Frost overlooks this."

"Canada is not a colony, and the Red Ensign does not represent Canada."

The Union Jack in the corner denotes Canada's dependency on England, he said.

"The best flag has not turned up yet."

5% Sales Tax Stays—Bennett

Spend for Expansion After Debt Retired

Premier Bennett won't reduce the 5 per cent sales tax when the direct debt of the province is liquidated in 1960.

He gave a flat "no" to the question during an interview Monday night. He was asked if he would consider reducing the tax to 3 per cent because he expects a saving of $25,000,000. This is the amount he is paying annually in interest and debt retirement on the direct debt.

"The government wants to use the extra money available for development of the province, for capital projects to create employment and expand the province," he answered.

It was suggested to the premier that he had cut his current public works budget from $36,000,000 to $44,000,000 in order to place $12,000,000 in the debt retirement fund.

COINCIDENTAL

"It may appear that way, but it is not the case," the premier replied. "There were two reasons for the reduction. We were holding up building projects through a lockout and a strike in the building trades, and strikes in other construction trades held up the highways program."

"Is it just a coincidence that the difference is precisely $12,000,000?" he was asked.

"Yes, a coincidence," he replied.

The premier refused to discuss the Summers case. Asked if he now thought he might have been wrong in 1956 when he referred to the charges as "fluff" and "smear," the premier said the matter is before the courts.

"I don't wish to discuss it." (The reference was to former lands and forests minister Robert Summers whose appeal against a five-year jail term for accepting bribes comes up in appeal court here next week.)

NOTHING WRONG

Premier Bennett said in answer to another question there was nothing wrong in Waldo Skillings, local insurance man and friend of the premier, accompanying him to Ottawa 10 days ago.

The premier met with Prime Minister Diefenbaker on provincial business, but Mr. Skillings was "in Ottawa on insurance business." Mr. Skillings did not sit in on the meeting with the prime minister. He was present when the premier met with Federal Works Minister Howard Green, but he has known Mr. Green for years.

MORE SNOW WEDNESDAY—AND COLDER

It's more of the same Wednesday as far as the weather is concerned.

Snow flurries. And there's no sign of a change in temperature, either, weatherman Bill Mackie said today.

Official forecast for tonight and Wednesday morning calls for a cloudy sky, with "a few light snow flurries." The thermometer will dip from today's average 35 to 32 tonight, 37 Wednesday.

LOW PRESSURE

Continued light snow is due to a minor area of low pressure west of Washington state and another one south of the lower B.C. coast.

Snow was still draping itself over the Malahat this morning, but the road surface is good and chains are not required.

Other main highways are reported clear and open and no traffic tie-ups have been reported.

FRENCH-CANADIAN HERE TO PUSH OWN DESIGN

'It's Happy Flag for Everybody'

Man with a flag—and a self-appointed mission to publicize it that drives him across the country like a dynamo—is Florian Lagace, 33-year-old Hawkesbury, Ont., railway clerk, a visitor to Victoria Monday.

He likes Ontario Premier Leslie Frost's flag, depicted in color in the Times Monday, but says his design is better. "Mine is a flag for everybody," he said. "It depicts both the English and French cultures in Canada, and some of the countries immigrants come from, too."

"It's my idea for Canada's national flag."

French-Canadian M. Lagace came to Victoria during a tour that has taken him across the country. Armed with a suitcase of miniature flags, a large silk one and scores of photographs, he has given up his annual three weeks' holiday and spent more than $500 in an attempt to "get the flag to the people."

"I feel sure it will be adopted as the Canadian national flag as soon as enough people know about it."

"It's a happy flag. It doesn't upset anybody, any background. It depicts the English as equal to the French. It holds Canada together. This is the right flag—I have a feeling about it."

That feeling of his has sent M. Lagace tramping through prairie and village. He has appeared on television, been interviewed by scores of newspapers.

Diefenbaker, Ministers Showed Interest

He has also written letters—hundreds of them, to federal members of Parliament, business houses and private citizens.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has expressed interest in M. Lagace's flag. So have several cabinet ministers, Opposition leaders and other well-known Canadians.

M. J. Coldwell wrote: "I think it is an excellent design. I do not recollect seeing anything which would be as striking, suitable and appropriate as the design you have submitted."

"It's letters like that one that keep me going," bachelor M. Lagace said.

"There is no other reward. This is entirely my own idea. I just don't see why Canada doesn't have a national flag. If England can have one, why can't we?"

The Lagace flag is based on the British Union Jack. A white cross on a red-and-blue background symbolizes, M. Lagace said, "our Canadian unity as well as our Christian faith."

A maple leaf surmounted on the white cross is green "to stand for our forests and summer months." The flag can easily be modified for armed forces, and a crown may be placed atop the central maple leaf for use by the Governor-General.

M. Lagace said the red color in the flag represents the Canadians of English extraction, the blue represents French-Canadians, and the white other ethnic groups.

"As I said," the flag's founder added, "it's a flag for everybody."

Next year Montreal-born M. Lagace will spend his vacation drumming up support for his flag in the Maritime provinces.

"One day," he said, "I hope it will be adopted for Canada. I know it's a popular design—back home I flew the flag over my home. Two days later it was missing."

He laughed: "Somebody must have liked it."

Man, Wife Admit Guilt After Raid

A man and his wife today pleaded guilty to false pretences involving $214.05 worth of goods following a raid by city and Saanich detectives and recovery of about $2,000 worth of goods Monday night.

John W. Willison and Frances Jean Raymus, his wife, both of 1785 Ross, were charged in city police court with obtaining mechanic's tools, a sander and machine attachments from a second-hand store at 1314 Government, operated by Arthur Loof, Jan. 10.

Detective Richard Berry said they proffered a worthless cheque for $214.30 in payment for the goods.

In Saanich police court a few minutes earlier Willison pleaded guilty to obtaining goods and groceries valued at $22.17 from Lake Hill Food Market, 3949 Quadra, also on Jan. 10.

PROBATION REPORT

He was remanded to Thursday for a probation report on this charge, and he and his wife were remanded in city court to Feb. 17, also for probation report.

Prosecutor T. P. O'Grady said other charges may be laid in the meantime.

Dt-Sgt. Joseph Armstrong, of Saanich police, said the raid in co-operation with city detectives recovered goods obtained in Victoria, Vancouver, North and West Vancouver.

Included were slide projector, tool boxes, portable typewriters, electrical kitchen appliances, a telescope, surveyor's instrument, records, a record player and electrical wiring.

PRaised BY MANY NOTABLE CANADIANS is this design for a national flag, shown in Victoria Monday by its creator Florian Lagace, Hawkesbury, Ont., railway clerk. English, French and several other European cultures are embodied in design, which also depicts Canada's forests and north-land.

Approval Certain On Colwood Track

Final federal approval of the B.C. Agricultural Association's plans to construct a $1,000,000 race track and fair ground in Colwood is imminent.

"It should be through any day now," said president Arthur H. Cox, re-elected Monday night to his second term as president of the association.

He declined to say what steps the association would take after approval was gained but said "there is no question about it being granted."

Climaxing nearly three years of negotiation with the federal government, the approval is expected to result in a prompt start in construction of a Class "A" fair of the same type as the Canadian and Pacific National Exhibitions.

One hundred and forty acres of land have been leased from the Department of National Defence on property bounded by Wilfert Road, the Old Island Highway and Belmont Road.

The old track on the property was used from 1924 to 1930 before the charter was released, and the area has been in disuse except for wartime use as an army camp.

Ultimate plans for the grounds are reported to include sports facilities of all kinds in addition to fair equipment and children's playgrounds.

Other officers elected at the meeting Monday were: George Harknett, first vice-president; W. S. Norrington, second vice-president; H. R. Milburn, third vice-president, and A. G. Hill, secretary.

Members of the executive committee are: J. G. Bremner, A. Brown and S. R. Bowden. Elected to the race committee were: K. R. Darbyshire, George Harknett and H. R. Milburn.

Access Road Work Started As Winter Work Project

City engineer's department began its first winter work project Monday, creating jobs for seven unemployed men.

Work involves rock blasting to prepare the route for an extension of Skinner Street which will give direct access from Craigflower to the Point Ellice Bridge.

City council will decide whether the total project is completed this year when it sets the budget.

The initial $7,200 phase included labor costs of $2,880 to be paid by the federal government under its offer to cover half of the labor costs in municipal projects creating winter work.

City engineer James Garnett said the department also is ready to begin preliminary work in developing the new Gorge-Harriet-Balfour subdivision as its next winter work project. The subdivision will put 24 city-owned lots on the market.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Victoria branch B.C. Government Employees' Association Monday asked its executive to "take immediate steps" on the question of wages.

About 60 members attending the closed meeting voted unanimously for action by the provincial executive and expressed "annoyance and dissatisfaction" over the $1,500,000 allocation in the budget for civil service wage adjustments.

Hit-run driver Ronald Lawrence Marshall, of Sidney, was fined $50 and $5 costs for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and $25 and $3 costs for careless driving when he pleaded guilty to charges in Sidney RCMP court Monday.

In addition, the court ordered a 90-day suspension of Marshall's driver's licence.

Police said Marshall "side-swiped" another car on Beacon Avenue, Sidney, Saturday night, and he was arrested Sunday.

City Engineer James Garnett will discuss the downtown parking plan at a luncheon-meeting of the Real Estate Board of Victoria Wednesday in the Empress Hotel ballroom.

Port Angeles Ferry Wharf Site Bought

A vacant city lot on Mont-real Street near Belleville has been purchased by a Vancouver syndicate as the first step toward building a terminal for the Black Ball Transport ferry, which is expected to start operation Seattle-Port Angeles-Victoria late this year.

Represented by Block Bros. Realty of Vancouver, the group paid $12,500 for the lot, situated between the B.A. Paint Company plant and Fishermen's Wharf.

A 30-day option has also been taken out on the adjacent Wilby Machine Shop.

Tentative plans are to build a stern-launching ferry terminal, with offices and restaurant, for lease to Black Ball Transport.

Incidentally, all of the (three operations) are creatures of the province subject to certain legislative controls and none has a right to a privileged priority over another."

Dr. Fisher said recent in-

NEVER WITHHELD

"At no time has the bank withheld a supplementary credit at a time when a funding operation was in progress."

What perhaps did happen was that the commission elected to defer payments pending receipt of the net proceeds from the sale of securities."

Dr. Fisher said that a day-to-day report on money requirements for the government operations was kept by his office and bonds were issued only on the approval of Premier Bennett.

"A retrospect of financial operation which takes into account all economic trends, existing market levels and the variance between short, medium and long term prices... will give ample evidence of timely and successful financing," he concluded.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Your Chance—Perk Up That Wardrobe With Sweaters

By PENNY SAVER

The nicest thing in my sweater drawer—as of a few days ago—is a white-wool cardigan. It washes like a dream (with warm water and gentle soap) and makes any of my well-worn outfits look special, from tweed dress to taffeta evening skirt.

These beautiful fine, botany wool classic white cardigans, are fully fashioned and made by an outstanding Scottish firm. Believe it or not, they are on sale for $4.59!

Sparkling white pullovers, with three-quarter dolman sleeves and slight turtle neck are reduced to $3.99. Teamed with a strand of pretty beads they'd bring rave notices. Other sweaters in this sale (tables and tables of them) are in all colors of the rainbow—peacock turquoise, cinnamon brown, soft moss green; oh, I could go on and on. They're in many styles, some V-necked, some with knit contrasting detail, and of course the ever-popular classic lines.

If you've been waiting for a real buy, this is it! Most are reduced from regular $9 stock to five and six dollars.

Warm fleece lined snow boots are just about the only things that will keep you comfy and snug no matter what the weather. I've had a pair for four years, now and being good leather and lined with real fleece, they are still as good as new.

Believe me, you'll never regret it if you invest in a pair. I saw some English snow boots today on sale for half-price—at $15.95. Very smartly styled, in suede or leather, fleece lined.

Nothing dresses up a skirt and sweater outfit so well as a sparkling metal medalion belt. They're on sale—dozens of them in all shapes and sizes and designs—for $1.58. Some very, very smart leather belts too, for $2.78.

TODAY'S RECIPE

HALIBUT WITH PUFF TOPPING

by Alice Brooks Rainbow Afghan.

Warm, gay, thrifty to knit! Whip up this cosy beauty now—it's mainly stockinette stitch.

Jiffy-knit in strips on large needles! Use scraps—alternate rainbow strip with solid color. Pattern 7265: directions, color chart for afghan.

Send 35 cents (coins) for this pattern (stamps cannot be accepted) to Times Household Dept., 60 Front St., West, Toronto, 1-A, Ont. Print plainly name, address, pattern number.

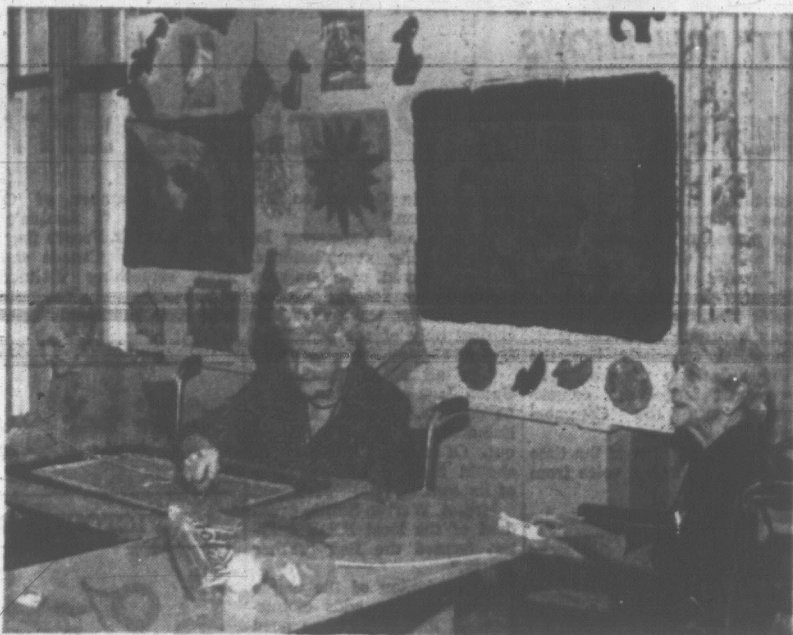

Our new 1959 Alice Brooks Needlecraft Catalogue has many lovely designs to order: crocheting, knitting, embroidery, quilts, dolls, weaving. A special gift, in the catalogue to keep a child happily occupied—a cutout doll and clothes to color. Send 25 cents for your copy of the book.

Topping: 2 lbs. halibut steaks or fillets, ¼ cup mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 egg.

Bake the steaks or fillets in a very hot oven 450-500 degrees F. Allow cooking time of 10 minutes per inch thickness of fresh fish and 20 minutes per inch thickness of frozen fish. Frozen fish should not be thawed prior to cooking.

Towards the end of cooking time prepare topping. Separate the yolk and beat the yolk until stiff. Combine the mayonnaise, lemon juice and egg yolk and then fold in stiffly beaten egg white.

When the fish is baked, spread topping over the cooked fish and return it to hot oven for 2 to 3 minutes. The topping will puff up and brown slightly. Remove and serve at once.

THERAPY ROOM READY FOR OPEN HOUSE

Patients in Gorge Road Hospital who work in the occupational therapy room are busy finishing articles to be included in the wall display arranged for the hospital's annual open house for the public this Wednesday.

A Valentine tea will be served in the recreation room and visitors will be taken on conducted tours of the hospital. Mrs. C. C. Warren and Mrs. R. C. Aitkin, presidents of the board and the ladies' auxiliary respectively, will act as hostesses.

Just What Is Vitamin C? It Keeps Us Glued Together

This is the last day I am giving this week to the story of vitamin C. It has become increasingly important as its many effects on health have become known through research, studies and experimentation.

Just what is vitamin C? Vitamin C is essential to the integrity of the cement substance which lies between the cells of the body's various tissues and keeps each cell properly set and supported. This makes me feel that I will fall apart unless I get enough of this vitamin each day. In a way we are all sort of glued together.

I already have mentioned many of the benefits derived from a sufficient vitamin C intake and I also have touched on some of the penalties which result from a deficiency.

Seventy milligrams daily for the average-sized woman in normal health is a good average, 100 daily for the pregnant woman and 150 for the nursing mother. It also seems wise to increase your vitamin C intake during many illnesses, during periods of stress, following an injury or an operation, to fight infection, or when chronic fatigue haunts you. Naturally you should follow your doctor's advice concerning your individual case.

On Etiquette

Wedding Presents Difficult for Stepmother: I am another stepmother bombarded with resentment from my husband's son, who will soon be married. I remarried two years ago, and the boy wants none of me or my own teenage children at the wedding, unless we remain inconspicuously in the background. This request has further antagonized my children, who are begging me not to go. What do you think we should do? The bride-to-be and I are very friendly. I have been invited to two parties for her (one of them is a shower) and wonder if I should send my regrets.

Louise Davis Answers: I hope you can muster up the courage to go to the ceremony and sit at the back. Then leave for home immediately afterwards. With such resentment on the part of your own children, I think it would be better if they be absent. Time generally heals all wounds, and my guess is that your husband's son will eventually gain maturity and wisdom and will hate himself for being so selfish, cruel and intolerant. Your presence at the ceremony should lessen the gap when that time comes. Your own maturity and understanding may even subconsciously inspire the young man to do some deep thinking. Since you and the bride-to-be are friendly, I see no reason for sending regrets for the two parties. The girl's sincere regard for you may help to influence her fiancé against such bigotry and resentment.

DEAR ABBY...

You've Got Company, Honey!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a dirty mind. The beauty parlor I go to happens to be located in a hotel. He says he doesn't want me seen going in and out of the hotel (it is a perfectly respectable hotel) because it looks bad. Also, if I happen to catch a bus right away and get home early he suspects that I had someone drive me home. I have never done anything (or thought of doing anything) that would give him reason to think I was unfaithful. Am I the only one with a man like this? Why does he think these things?
—FAITHFUL

DEAR FAITHFUL: When someone continually spies dirt on the next fellow, the speck of dirt can usually be found in his own eye. If it is any comfort to you, you are not alone.

DEAR ABBY: I am a mature, independent woman in the real estate business. I am interested in a man in the next town. When I call him to tell him I am driving down to see him he seems delighted and is always available. I pack a hot dinner and tuck in a bottle of wine and we have a wonderful spread by the countryside. I can't understand why he never calls me or comes here to see me.

DEAR PUZZLED: Why should he? He never had it so good.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to say to the woman who is afraid to have a child because she dreams that her baby will be born blind or crippled: my fears were similar to hers. When I was pregnant I prayed every night that my baby would be a healthy normal child. God chose to send us a precious little boy who was born blind. He is almost three now and we have taken him to many doctors, but they can do nothing for him. I will not say that this was easy to accept, but we have done so, long ago, because it was God's will. Our son creates more problems than an ordinary child but we wouldn't trade him for any other baby in the world. Things could be a lot worse, and in spite of everything, we still feel that both our son and we are richly blessed.
A MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Thank you for your beautiful letter.

You reconfirm the wisdom in the words, "God never gives us a heavier load than we can carry."

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl who is 12 years old and my problem is my best girl friend. She is a real cute girl and smart in school, but she doesn't want me to have any other friend but her. She cuts down every other girl I speak to. I like to be friendly with everybody but it seems I have to take my choice between this one girl and all the rest. Please tell me what to do.

UNDECIDED
DEAR UNDECIDED: Be friendly with ALL the girls. If this one girl realizes that she can't monopolize you, she will probably be friendlier with the other girls, too.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WANTING TO KNOW: Ask your father. Tell him that you have heard that your mother is not "in heaven" but in a "mental hospital." (Not insane asylum). You have a right to know the truth, but it should come from your father.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Refrigerator Donated

President's report given at meeting of the Women's Welcome Room committee showed that a refrigerator in which to keep butter, milk and other perishables had been donated by a former hostess. Other reports showed visits to shut-ins had been made and donations of cakes received. Attendance during January was 444 and in December, when the room was closed over the holiday season, 213. Two new members were recorded and 28 hostesses.

THE WARM-UP FOR A BIG, BIG BLOW

Mrs. Aaron Parfitt, oldest living member of Metropolitan United Church blew out the first of 100 candles on the anniversary cake at a congregation dessert tea held in Pendray Hall, Monday evening. Representing the future of the church, Maureen Tilson, president of Canadian Girls in Training, and Bill Lawrie, Chief Tyro, are ready to assist. Rev. F. E. H. Jmaes assisted Mrs. Parfitt in cutting the cake which marked a century of achievement in the church life of this city.

Little Melody Joan, held by her mother, Mrs. J. Edward Siddall, 2634 Millstream Road, Langford, does not realize yet that she is making history as the fourth generation in her family. Her great-grandmother, Mrs. C. E. Goodman, Dencross Terrace, Sidney, B.C., is pictured at centre, and her grandmother, Mrs. Alf Larsen, 139 Helmcken Road, Victoria, at the right.

Greater Knowledge Needed In Canadian-American Relations

The need for better knowledge of essential truths in Canadian-American relations was stressed Monday afternoon at Women's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel.

L. E. Laybourne, managing director of Time International, Canadian Bureau, told his audience that United States needs to know more of the important essentials about Canada and in turn, Canada needs to interpret American trends and problems "for what they are in themselves, in terms fundamentally understandable to Canadians and with basic elements so clearly put that real Canadian comprehension is assured."

In the past antagonism, disinterest, ignorance and envy all have played a part in regarding proper Canadian-United States relations. Today, through the closer identification of business and financial communities in the two countries; the heavy borrowings of Canadian industries, municipalities and provinces in the United States; the investment of private United States business enterprises in Canada "a higher degree of sophisticated information has been necessary and a genuine improvement has taken place."

"Signs and portents in the early months of 1959 certainly would lead us to believe that Canadian-American relations are smoother and fundamentally happier because they are substantially better based than in the past."

The speaker closed on an optimistic note that visualized eventually "a working partnership that would serve as an example to the world of what two great countries could do in bettering conditions for their peoples together—and not as two separate entities."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1959

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Steel clear of executive or person in authority who is working at high tension today. Best to be off with people who are happy and congenial, whether in commerce or for much needed recreation. Don't argue with anyone.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Be sure in early a.m. to acquire the data that will permit a new method to be inaugurated in your activities that will prove far more successful. Then clear up accumulated chores both at home and in place of business or art.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Carry on with your plans as decided upon earlier without permitting one in authority to change them. Then you can spend remainder of day enjoying yourself with intimates and acquaintances. Be very diplomatic and co-operative.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)—Steel clear of altercation between associate and higher up. You can then be out and about in commerce where your fine practical gifts can be put to greatest use. Impress everyone with your really fine horse sense.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Endeavor not to lose yourself in regular humdrum work and habits that are so confining. Step out into the business or artistic world and let your light shine. Run the full gamut from inventions to psychology, since you are so versatile.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Dispel that tension in early a.m. by a most charming smile. Later you will then have time to gather all that information that is vital to you right now and will be invaluable in the very near future. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Take care you do not allow some worry, at abode-to-keep you from gaining from the fine aspects today to deal successfully with other persons, whether in business or socially. Get out and accomplish a great deal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Do important wiring and writing in early a.m. Then delve into all the vital tasks that will stamp you as a conscientious and hard-working individual. Also, see that your wardrobe is in fine shape, home immaculate, etc.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Take care that you do not permit the morning to go by without attending to real estate matters, taxes, etc., that are vitally important. Remainder of day should be spent in recreation or artistic expressions you enjoy most.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—A.M. may be fraught with anxiety or frustration over certain situations at residence which do not suit you. Dig in later and straighten things out, especially clearing out debris and replacing the old with the new.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Private worry should be forgotten in a.m. by sensibly jumping into worthwhile activity. Latter part of day can then be used to shop and visit, to meet newcomers who can enrich your life in many ways. Take heart and zoom!

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—While the suggestions proffered by one in authority may not please you, follow them for real well-being. Later you can adjust monetary affairs so successfully that security can be achieved with a minimum of effort.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN WEDNESDAY...
The sweet youngster born Wednesday will have to learn the lessons of life early by difficult methods. But this will be very profitable since the mentality becomes sharpened and truly big enterprises can be tackled with success in the offing. Take care, however, to inculcate the finest philosophical tenets so that your progeny may have a full life and be a great help to humanity at large.

Nanaimo Isn't Exactly Sad Over PR's Victoria Snub

NANAIMO — This city isn't shedding any tears over the CPR's decision to halt winter ferry services between Victoria and Vancouver Feb. 26.

Sights are already trained on increased traffic through the Hub City.

The Chamber of Commerce is flaunting a new tourist brochure in an effort to attract tourists to B.C.'s fourth largest city, and there is a current drive from city hall to "keep the tourist in the district."

NANAIMO — Court of revision for rural district, Nanaimo regulated area, will hear 20 appeals against assessment this week.

The board is headed by ex-mayor Jack Barsby with Allan Armstrong and R. Perkins, Robert Miller, inspector, represents the crown.

NANAIMO — Licensed by the city only last week, a privately owned night patrol has put the finger on its first breaking and entering culprit.

A Ladysmith youth was remanded for a week in police court charged with entering.

The office of a used car lot was turned into a shambles in vain effort to find car keys and money.

NANAIMO — Manager of Simpson-Sears store here since its opening in 1954, Rex Covey is reported being transferred to an eastern store March 1.

Mr. Covey, a U.S. citizen, is vice-president of Nanaimo's Chamber of Commerce.

NANAIMO — Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts Monday termed as "regrettable" the lack of accommodation at Woodlands School for retarded children.

He made his comment when faced with the problem of what to do with a 14-year-old boy with the mental age of six who admitted breaking and entering a residence and stealing 56 cents.

"Though it is not the proper place to send him, I will have to commit him to Brannan Lake School until he can be admitted to Woodlands," the magistrate said.

Welfare officer Don Bingham said the boy was "an urgent case for admittance" to Woodlands.

GANGES — Writer John Rhodes Sturdy, who lives here, received a salute by the long arm of coincidence this week.

Two of his stories appear in Saturday Evening Post and one in Maclean's Magazine.

The Saturday Evening Post story is a fictional railroad tale set in Nova Scotia, entitled "Moment of Danger."

The other is a Maclean's Flashback, "Stoker Mahoney and Pill No. 2183" about the war at sea, and the development of a seasickness pill.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hughes and their two children are looking for a new home today after being housed out of their two-storey rented home Sunday.

The family is temporarily staying at Painter's Lodge and the Red Cross has provided bedding and clothing.

Nothing was left of the home but smouldering walls. The Hughes were visiting neighbors when the blaze broke out. Some furniture was salvaged but all personal belongings were lost.

Cause of the blaze was not known.

CHEMAMINUS — Initiated into the Santa Maria Council of Ladysmith-Chemaminus, Knights of Columbus, were Jack Patrick, Ray Pellier and William Verchere of Ladysmith and Dominic Maika of Chemaminus.

In attendance were state deputy J. Griffin and district deputy G. Tyrrell of Victoria, P. Mason of Duncan Council and J. A. Stark of Santa Maria Council. A large number of district Knights of Columbus also attended.

NORMAN CRIBBENS IN THE LEGISLATURE

A plea for improved decorum was heard in the House Monday and it coincided with The Times "What's Your Opinion" column in which several readers spoke critically of name-calling and harsh language between the government and Opposition benches.

Championing the cause of decorum and sobriety in debate was CCF Leader Robert Strachan. And Mr. Strachan did not hesitate to blame Premier Bennett for the "slump" in legislative decorum.

To emphasize his point, Mr. Strachan recalled sitting in the public galleries, before he was elected, and listening to a premier who "sat quietly in his chair with arms folded and listened to what members had to say."

He did not name this model premier but implied that, in those days, members did not exchange such epithets as confidence trickster, political machinator or purveyor of "tripe."

"If there has been a deterioration in the decorum of this House, the man responsible is the premier," declared Mr. Strachan pointing at his opposite number.

Alas, the Provincial Archives do not point to the past as a model of decorum.

We read not only of name-calling but of actual fist-cuffs in the chamber, as when a man named Smith Curtis (then member for Rossland) seized a fellow MLA by the neck "in an endeavor to pull him out of his chair."

To which the record adds:

"Some preliminary cries of 'Shame' were soon drowned in howls of delight as the spectators rose on tip-toe and bent over the railings to get a better view of the fight."

Victoria historian James Morton throws further light on the decorum of days gone by. In his book, "Honest John Oliver," he reveals that Premier Oliver, in spite of the sobriquet bestowed on him, was called just about everything else in this chamber from "horse thief" upward.

Mr. Morton further records that when Premier Oliver (celebrating his 70th birthday in office) was asked what he thought of the B.C. legislature, he replied:

"When I first came to this House I used to look round and wonder why men of any ability had sent me here... now I sometimes wonder why they sent the other fellows."

Continuing his attack on Premier Bennett, Mr. Strachan quoted Vancouver tycoon Austin Taylor as having said that, if Mr. Bennett claimed the debt of the province had been reduced, it was "damnable."

"Is he your friend?" asked Premier Bennett.

"I am everybody's friend," responded Mr. Strachan.

George Gregory, the sober-faced Liberal member for Victoria, seemed distressed that Mr. Strachan, after complaining of a bad cold, should have spoken for two hours and 20 minutes.

"For a man who is supposed to be at death's door this is quite a contribution," he said.

Mr. Gregory referred aptly to the snowstorm raging outside the legislature as symbolic of the storm within and said he hoped to distribute daffodils in the days when a Liberal government replaced Social Credit.

Highways Minister Gagliardi translated the letters CCF as Complete Concentrated Fertilizer.

Mr. Strachan retaliated by referring to the letters SC (Social Credit) as Sanctimonious Creeders.

Gov't Trying to Head Off Student March—Strachan

Provincial government education grants — and the new plan to share tuition fees of university honor students — were attacked Monday from several directions.

UBC president Norman MacKenzie indicated basic grants to the university were so far short of what is required, a fee increase is the only answer to rising expenses.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said Premier Bennett's offer to share fees of honor students was a last-minute measure to forestall a student march on Victoria.

George Gregory (Lib-Victoria) said the fee-splitting offer would not help ordinary students, who would in fact suffer from a general rate increase.

And he was disappointed that the budget speech did not hint at establishment of Victoria College as full-fledged four-year institution.

Dr. MacKenzie's comments on the education budget warned of fee increases and the probability faculty salaries will not be raised as much as had been hoped. But he praised the money-for-marks program outlined by the premier.

Under the plan, the provincial government will pay half the fees of first-class students in senior matriculation, the University of Victoria, the University of British Columbia and one-third the fees of the highest 2,000 students among those receiving second-class standing.

"The government deserves congratulations for being the first province in Canada to recognize and give a bonus for excellence," he said.

He added, however, "there is no use ducking the issue."

"The board of governors will have to consider a fee increase. We will also have to tell our colleagues we are sorry — there is only so much money."

The largest part of a desired budget grant of $2,000,000 was to go to raising professor's salaries to the level paid at the University of Toronto.

The board of governors will meet Feb. 23 to discuss a fee increase.

The government offer to share fees was inserted into the premier's budget speech as a last-minute measure to forestall a student march on the legislature, Opposition Leader Strachan charged in opening the budget speech debate Monday.

Holding up a copy of the premier's speech, he said nowhere within it could he find any reference to the surprise education grant.

"Matters have deteriorated to such a point the government realized the students were about to march on Victoria. They had to dream," said Mr. Strachan.

He added, University of British Columbia required about $1,000,000 to avoid fee increases, but the government has given only $500,000 and "the erosion of our university will continue." The difference between the amount asked and the amount given would mean increased fees for students generally, he indicated.

Students at UBC have been conducting an organized letter campaign directed to all members. A delegation of 208 students, four for each MLA, is expected to make a protest march to Victoria from UBC.

Premier Bennett said following Mr. Strachan's address that the insertion of the fee-splitting announcement into his budget speech was only to elaborate on disbursements which already were quoted in his budget.

B.C. CAPITAL ESCAPES SENTENCE TO OAKALLA

VANCOUVER (CP)—Proposal to move the B.C. capital to the mainland was turned down by municipal council suburban Burnaby Monday night, but only by a slim margin.

Councillor Camille Mather said curtailed Canadian Pacific Steamship service would make travel to Victoria difficult. She suggested Oakalla Prison Farm or the B.C. Penitentiary suitable sites for the capital. The proposal was defeated 4 to 3.

Save-Ferry Drive Led By MLAs

With just 15 days to go before the announced termination of CPR service from Victoria to Vancouver to Seattle, the B.C. Legislature is leading a desperate battle to keep the ships running.

Main action Monday was in the Legislature, where Works Minister W. N. Chant introduced a motion, seconded by George Gregory (Lib.-Victoria), asking the federal government to assure continuation of year-round service between Vancouver and Victoria.

The motion touched off a barrage against the CPR and the federal government, which crossed party lines.

Several members urged the government take over all CPR services.

The CPR has announced that, after sailings of Feb. 25, service from Victoria to Vancouver-Seattle will be suspended during the winter, and the night steamer to Vancouver and all service to Port Angeles ended completely.

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell today bitterly criticized local members of Parliament for failing to speak up against the CPR's decision.

Joint Municipal Protest Possible

He also blasted federal government "legal excuses" for not taking action and threw his support behind suggestions that the federal or provincial governments should take over the entire CPR ferry service on the west coast.

He said he probably will call an intermunicipal committee meeting to organize a joint municipal protest against the suspension.

Ald. Dowell said he was "surprised" when reading accounts of a debate in the Commons on the CPR plan "that apparently there were no remarks from our own members. Defence Minister George Pearkes and A. deB. McPhillips.

"You'd think our own members would at least say something. The member from Vancouver, Mr. Winch, did."

Ald. Dowell said the federal government's attitude of "utter disregard is unbelievable. It seems to me they've taken the easy way out and are making excuses."

(Transport Minister George Hees said the federal government does not plan to interfere with the suspension. He said Ottawa has no legal obligations to maintain a ferry service.)

"Legally speaking they may be right," said Ald. Dowell, "but I think they have some moral obligation to this city which is the capital of B.C."

'CPR Wants All Cream, No Milk'

He said he fully supported suggestions during a debate in the provincial legislature urging a federal or provincial take-over of all CPR ferry services here, using profitable runs to offset the cost of losing operations.

"The CPR wants all the cream and none of the milk," Ald. Dowell charged.

He said he was keeping in daily contact with Mayor Percy Scurrell, vacationing in Palm Springs, who has offered to lead a delegation to Ottawa if necessary.

Oak Bay municipal council entered the fight Monday, voting to wire a protest to federal Transport Minister George Hees.

Coun. Fred Robinson said the CPR's winter ferry function should be taken on the basis of the year-round operation, and that the company should not be allowed to drop the service and pick it up again "in the most lucrative part of the season."

Coun. Geoffrey Ellis termed the move "a great unfairness" on the part of the CPR.

"The more we hit at the federal government the better," said Coun. Fred Hawes. He suggested the CPR should at least retain the night steamers until B.C. government ferries start operations from Sidney next year.

George Bonner, president of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association, brought in the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway. In a wire to Attorney-General Robert Bonner, he suggested increased E & N service including day and night passenger trains with sleeping car accommodation, with complete trains ferried across from Nanaimo to Esquimalt.

An obscure clause in the 88-year-old terms of agreement under which British Columbia joined confederation may yet be a factor in the battle for the ferries.

The clause was detailed by Attorney-General Bonner in the Legislature Monday.

He said he had searched

NEW 2,500-MILE H-ROCKET CHOSEN

U.K. Goes a Bluestreak

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain announced plans today to go ahead with development of a 2,500-mile rocket as the weapon best suited to her defence needs.

It is the Bluestreak, a guided missile capable of delivering a hydrogen warhead. It can be fired from underground emplacements. There have been reports that it may be test-fired before the end of this year.

The government's annual defence report, reviewing the first two years of Britain's current five-year nuclear age plan, estimated the 1959-1960 defence bill at £1,514,000,000 ($4,250,000,000). This is about one-third of Britain's total annual budget and £20,000,000 more than the actual spending in the current financial year ending next month.

The government said Britain's production of megaton hydrogen bombs is proceeding steadily, in addition to the growing stock of smaller kiloton nuclear weapons.

The report noted satisfactory progress in the development of flying bombs to be released from high-flying aircraft outside the range of enemy anti-aircraft defence systems.

The defence of Britain's own "deterrent bases" would be performed increasingly by ground-to-air missiles, of which the British-built Bloodhound Ramjet was the most outstanding.

Other points made by the report were:

A supersonic, low-flying, nuclear-bomb-carrying plane, the TSR-2, was being developed for army support and other tactical operations.

NEW VIOLENCE MARKS STRIKE

GRAND FALLS, Nfld. (CP)

Union sources said wind-shields of six cars, including an RCMP vehicle, were smashed when a police-escorted motorcade attempted to pass through a picket line.

Two women pickets were reported injured.

This plane would be able to carry air-to-air missiles.

Work has begun on four guided missile County class ships with combined steam and gas turbine machinery. Two more will be started soon.

Satisfactory progress is being made to end military conscription by 1962 and reorganize a completely voluntary military force.

Sleeping City Hit 'Like Train'

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—A tornado with winds up to 110 miles an hour smashed into St. Louis early today, spreading death and destruction from the southwest edge of the city to the centre.

Twenty-two bodies were in the city morgue. Police said the death toll was expected to rise.

The two city hospitals reported they treated and released 270 persons and kept 55 for additional treatment.

In suburban Brentwood the storm felled the 300-ft. transmitting tower of radio station KXLW. Another transmitting tower, that of television station KTVI, was flattened in southwest St. Louis. It crushed two residences and three parked cars but no one was injured.

The storm hammered hardest on a seven-by-30 block area a mile west of the downtown heart of the city.

It is a predominantly Negro neighborhood.

Searchers worked throughout the night, turning over rubble in frantic rescue efforts.

At dawn, they renewed their methodical hunt for the dead and the living caught in falling bricks, concrete and lumber.

St. Louis was lashed by torrential rains for hours before the tornado struck.

"God knows how many people are trapped in those buildings," said deputy fire chief James Sauerwein.

TERRIFIC BLOW

The storm struck at 2:20 a.m. William McAllister was leaving a gasoline station in the area when the storm struck.

"There was a terrific glow of light as if a cloud was illuminated and there was the sound like the roar of a tremendous automobile racing its engine," McAllister said.

"Within two minutes the sound of the storm had passed and there was a terrific silence."

UTTER CONFUSION

The area was utter confusion. One policeman reported six bodies had been carried from a levelled four-family apartment two blocks from Busch Stadium where St. Louis Cardinals play. The ball park itself was not damaged.

Police said persons were trapped in at least three smashed homes or apartments. Some 14 persons were reported trapped in a three-storey frame building at Delmar and Whittier, in the direct path of the storm.

Zeb Williams was asleep. "I was blown against the wall and out of the window and landed safely on a mattress in the street below," he said. He could hear the groans of other occupants trapped in the rubble.

Before the tornado struck, torrential rain lashed the area. More than two inches of water fell in less than six hours. Police in suburban University City said more than 150 basements there had been flooded.

Hundreds of spectators wandered through the debris, stunned by the storm which struck as they slept. The storm hit the same general area where a tornado in 1927 claimed more than 100 lives.

A day of grim weather throughout the continent brought other small tornadoes to Mitchell in southern Indiana and a small area south of Indianapolis today.

Sommers Case Flares Again

George Gregory, Liberal MLA for Victoria, challenged Attorney-General Robert Bonner in the Legislature Monday to explain why he delayed prosecution in the case of ex-lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

(Attorney-General Bonner was to speak in the budget debate this afternoon.)

Mr. Gregory stated that the original charges of bribery against Mr. Sommers made by accountant Charles Eversfield were "no mere shots in the dark."

He said Eversfield in his statutory declaration handed to the attorney-general on Dec. 5, 1955, specifically accused Sommers of receiving $607 worth of rugs; $2,500 telegraphed by H. W. Gray; $1,000 in cash mailed by H. W. Gray; four $500 bonds and two $50 bonds.

On each one of these specific charges, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, Mr. Gregory said.

ACQUITTED ON NONE

"In respect of no charges made by Eversfield was the minister acquitted. In respect of only two was the jury unable to agree on a verdict."

"It took the court five months to resolve only part of the case. Yet the attorney-general undertook to do it in two hours and decided to do nothing; even though it was perfectly obvious that if Sommers was not guilty of taking bribes, Eversfield, who had put his charges in the form of a statutory declaration, was guilty of perjury."

Mr. Gregory recalled how Sommers had started an action for libel based on the statutory declaration which Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy and Eversfield gave to the attorney-general on Dec. 5, 1955.

"Only three people knew of its existence at that time—Sturdy, Eversfield and the attorney-general. And one of them told Sommers."

"It is most unlikely that either Sturdy or Eversfield did because they had, after all, gone to the attorney-general to complain to him about Sommers."

"And yet Sommers learned of its existence, not merely in general terms, but specifically, even of its date and even before whom it was made."

Dulles Goes To Hospital For Hernia

(Times News Service) — WASHINGTON — State Secretary Dulles, who was smiling, checked into Walter Reed army hospital today for a hernia operation.

Dulles also will be treated for his colon inflation, which has resisted medication. Treatment will require several weeks of rest.

"The secretary is worn out," a hospital spokesman said. "He needs a rest."

His ailment, kept secret for more than a month, was disclosed by President Eisenhower Monday night after Dulles asked and got a formal leave of absence. It immediately posed two big questions: Will Dulles, who will be 71 Feb. 25, return to his post? Will the West, with an ailing Dulles or without him at all, revise its policy toward new Soviet threats and demands on Germany?

In Britain, both outcomes were feared.

The British press, however — even Dulles' sharpest critics — showed unprecedented sympathy for his illness and its possible effects.

Ex-Premier's Family Surprised By B.C. Plan for $5,000 Pension

Byron Johnson Jr. son of the former premier of British Columbia, today expressed "surprise" at the Social Credit government bill to provide his father with a lifetime pension of $5,000 a year and said it

"was neither requested, required nor discussed."

Speaking with the Times by telephone from Vancouver, Mr. Johnson said that his mother and father were holidaying in California and that the implication of the bill — that his father was in stringent circumstances — was not true.

(The bill was introduced in the House Monday afternoon by Premier Bennett, who said that "the great service" of the former premier should be recognized. It would start payment on April 1 this year.)

Frost's Flag Causes Flutter But Precious Little Agreement

By TONY DICKSON

Ask a half-dozen people here what they think about a national flag for Canada, and you can get a half-dozen different answers.

There is only one agreement, this on the fact that a flag is necessary.

Officials of Victoria groups contacted today in a sort of "flag poll" were asked what they thought of Ontario Premier Leslie Frost's creation—carried on the front page of the Times Monday—a Red Ensign with 10 maple leaves representing the provinces, bordering Canada's coat-of-arms.

Some were cool to Mr. Frost's creation, others warmly in favor. C. A. Gill, secretary, Pro Patria branch, Canadian Legion, said: "I like the thing. It's balanced nicely and is quite appropriate. But this is my own personal opinion, not that of the branch."

A. A. Cownden, secretary, Naval Veterans' branch of the Legion, said branch members were "quite content" with the present Red Ensign, without any body flapping around with a flag.

Premier Frost said his addition of the maple leaves was accomplished by "doodling." Secretary of the 2,400-member Britannia branch of the Canadian Legion, W. J. Kane, said the flag question will come up for discussion at an executive meeting Thursday, and recommendations would be passed to the membership at a later date.

Personally, regarding Mr. Frost's flag submission, he said, "I rather like it. The flag represents all the provinces. I especially like the Union Jack in the corner as we can't forget our connections with the Commonwealth."

He added: "Now is the time to push—to have a voice from this area in Ottawa on the flag situation."

Victoria and Vancouver Island publicity commissioner, George Warren, who has seen many flags flying during the past few days, was critically only of the suggested flag of Canada.

"It's all right except the Union Jack on the flag should be definite. It needs a white line around it to make it stand out. Of course I feel Canada should have a national flag of its own."

Mrs. A. Warren Smith, president of the local IOOE chapter, termed the flag "rather pretty."

"The addition of the maple leaves certainly adds distinction. I like it. As we need an official flag, this looks good."

The IOOE is on record as approving adoption of the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag.

R. D. McLachlan, secretary of the Victoria branch, Native Sons of Canada, was critical of the entire flag conception, though admitting "as a flag, it is very nice."

"I don't think we need the maple leaves around the coat-of-arms as they are already included in the coat-of-arms. The Red Ensign is only a colonial flag anyway, and I think Premier Frost overlooks this."

"Canada is not a colony, and the Red Ensign does not represent Canada."

The Union Jack in the corner denotes Canada's dependency on England, he said.

"The best flag has not turned up yet."

Conway Parrott, president,

Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said: "I wouldn't go along with Mr. Frost's flag for national use. Canada should have something distinctive, representing all the people who have made this country what it is."

Arthur Cox, secretary of the Victoria Liberal Association, said: "There is nothing wrong with the flag we now have (the Red Ensign). What's all the argument about?"

Acting mayor of Whitehorse, Dr. Harry Hickman, president of the Victoria branch, English Speaking Union, said: "I'd rather say nothing at the moment."

The reaction here paralleled that across Canada—nobody in said: "I'd rather say nothing," a flutter about a flag.

'It's Happy Flag for Everybody'

Man with a flag—and a self-appointed mission to publicize it that drives him across the country like a dynamo—is Florian Lagace, 33-year-old Hawkesbury, Ont., railway clerk, a visitor to Victoria Monday.

He likes Ontario Premier Leslie Frost's flag, depicted in color in the Times Monday, but says his design is better. "Mine is a flag for everybody," he said. "It depicts both the English and French cultures in Canada, and some of the countries immigrants come from, too."

"It's my ideal for Canada's national flag."

French-Canadian M. Lagace came to Victoria during a tour that has taken him across the country. Armed with a suitcase of miniature flags, a large silk one and scores of photographs, he has given up his annual three-week holiday and spent more than $300 in an attempt to "get the flag to the people."

"I feel sure it will be adopted as the Canadian national flag as soon as enough people know about it."

"It's a happy flag. It doesn't upset anybody, any background. It depicts the English as equal to the French. It holds Canada together. This is the right flag—I have a feeling about it."

That feeling of his has sent M. Lagace tramping through prairie and village. He has appeared on television, been interviewed by scores of newspapers.

Diefenbaker, Ministers Showed Interest

He has also written letters—hundreds of them, to federal members of Parliament, business houses and private citizens.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has expressed interest in M. Lagace's flag. So have several cabinet ministers, Opposition leaders and other well-known Canadians.

M. Lagace wrote: "I think it is an excellent design. I do not recollect seeing anything which would be as striking, suitable and appropriate as the design you have submitted."

"It is letters like that one that keep me going," bachelor M. Lagace said.

"There is no other reward. This is entirely my own idea. I just don't see why Canada doesn't have a national flag. If England can have one, why can't we?"

The Lagace flag is based on the British Union Jack. A white cross on a red-and-blue background symbolizes, M. Lagace said, "our Canadian unity as well as our Christian faith."

A maple leaf surmounted on the white cross is green "to stand for our forests and summer months." The flag can easily be modified for armed forces, and a crown may be placed atop the central maple leaf for use by the Governor-General.

M. Lagace said the red color in the flag represents the Canadians of English extraction, the blue represents French-Canadians, and the white other ethnic groups.

"As I said," the flag's founder added, "it's a flag for everybody."

Next year Montreal-born M. Lagace will spend his vacation drumming up support for his flag in the Maritimes.

"One day," he said, "I hope it will be adopted for Canada. I know it's a popular design—back home I flew the flag over my home. Two days later it was missing."

He laughed: "Somebody must have liked it."

APPROVED BY MANY NOTABLE CANADIANS is this design for a national flag, shown in Victoria Monday by its creator Florian Lagace, Hawkesbury, Ont., railway clerk. English, French and several other European cultures are embodied in design, which also depicts Canada's forests and northland.

Approval Certain On Colwood Track

Final federal approval of the B.C. Agricultural Association's plans to construct a $1,000,000 race track and fair ground in Colwood is imminent.

"It should be through any day now," said president Arthur H. Cox, re-elected Monday night to his second term as president of the association.

He declined to say what steps the association would take after approval was gained but said "there is no question about it being granted."

Climaxing nearly three years of negotiation with the federal government, the approval is expected to result in a prompt start in construction of a Class "A" fair of the same type as the Canadian and Pacific National Exhibition.

LAND LEASED

One hundred and forty acres of land have been leased from the Department of National Defence on property bounded by Wilfert Road, the Old Island Highway and Belmont Road.

The old track on the property was used from 1924 to 1930 before the charter was released, and the area has been in disuse except for wartime use as an army camp.

Ultimate plans for the grounds are reported to include sports facilities of all kinds in addition to fair equipment and children's playgrounds.

Other officers elected at the meeting Monday were: George Harknett, first vice-president; W. S. Norrington, second vice-president; H. R. Milburn, third vice-president, and A. G. Hill, secretary.

Members of the executive committee are: J. G. Bruner, A. Brown and S. R. Bowden.

Elected to the race committee were: K. R. Darbyshire, George Harknett and H. R. Milburn.

Man, Wife Admit Guilt After Raid

A man and his wife today pleaded guilty to false pretences involving $214.05 worth of goods following a raid by city and Saanich detectives and recovery of about $2,000 worth of goods Monday night.

John W. Willison and Frances Jean Raymus, his wife, both of 1785 Ross, were charged in city police court with obtaining mechanic's tools, a sander and machine attachments from a second-hand store at 1314 Government, operated by Arthur Loof, Jan. 10.

Police Detective Richard Berry said they proffered a worthless cheque for $214.30 in payment for the goods.

In Saanich police court a few minutes earlier Willison pleaded guilty to obtaining goods and groceries valued at $22.17 from Lake Hill Food Market, 3949 Quadra, also on Jan. 10.

FOR PROBATION

He was remanded to Thursday for a probation report on this charge, and he and his wife were remanded in city court to Feb. 17, also for probation report.

Prosecutor T. P. O'Grady said other charges may be laid in the meantime.

Dt.-Sgt. Joseph Armstrong, of Saanich police, said the raid in co-operation with city detectives recovered goods obtained in Victoria, Vancouver, North and West Vancouver.

Included were slide projectors, tool boxes, portable typewriters, electrical kitchen appliances, a telescope, surveyor's instrument, records, a record player and electrical wiring.

Access Road Work Started As Winter Work Project

City engineer's department began its first winter work project Monday, creating jobs for seven unemployed men.

Work involves rock blasting to prepare the route for an extension of Skinner Street which will give direct access from Craigflower to the Point Ellice Bridge.

City council will decide whether the total project is completed this year when it sets the budget.

The initial $7,200 phase included labor costs of $2,880 to be paid by the federal government under its offer to cover half of the labor costs in municipal projects, creating winter work.

City engineer James Garnett said the department also is ready to begin preliminary work in developing the new Gorge-Harriet-Balfour subdivision as its next winter work project. The subdivision will put 24 city-owned lots on the market.

5% Sales Tax Stays—Bennett

Spend for Expansion After Debt Retired

Premier Bennett won't reduce the 5 per cent sales tax when the direct debt of the province is liquidated in 1960.

He gave a flat "no" to the question during an interview Monday night. He was asked if he would consider reducing the tax to 3 per cent because he expects a saving of $25,000,000. This is the amount he is paying annually in interest and debt retirement on the direct debt.

"The government wants to use the extra money available for development of the province, for capital projects to create employment and expand the province," he answered.

It was suggested to the premier that he had cut his current public works budget from $56,000,000 to $44,000,000 in order to place $12,000,000 in the debt retirement fund.

COINCIDENTAL

"It may appear that way, but it is not the case," the premier replied. "There were two reasons for the reduction. We were holding up building projects through a lockout and a strike in the building trades, and strikes in other construction trades held up the highways program."

"Is it just a coincidence that the difference is precisely $12,000,000?" he was asked.

CREDIT POOLING 'INESCAPABLE'

Power Official Doesn't Understand Says Fisher

Dr. J. V. Fisher, the provincial government's economic adviser, Monday said a B.C. Power Commission financial expert didn't know what he was talking about when he testified before the Shrum royal commission.

In a letter to commission chairman Dr. G. M. Shrum, Dr. Fisher challenged Friday's testimony by Ian R. Mills, financial manager of BCPC.

Mr. Mills caused a sensation when he told the royal commission that BCPC could not pay its creditors for three weeks in 1957 because the pooled line of bank credit established by the government was exhausted.

"Mr. Mills' postulations on market transactions, the marketing of securities or interest trends, reflect a regrettable lack of knowledge on any or all of these subjects," wrote Dr. Fisher.

"His inferences as to the scope of possible or advisable market operations are contrary to a logical interpretation of actual events and compelling conditions which were the result of the volume and timing of the commission's own construction costs."

HURT BCPC

Mr. Mills had testified that the government's decision to pool the lines of credit of BCPC, Pacific Great Eastern Railway and B.C. Highways and Toll Bridges Authority had at one point worked to the disadvantage of BCPC.

He said the BCPC was forced to go to the market and borrow 10,000,000 at 5.116 per cent interest in order to pay its bills but only a week later the PGE was able to borrow $30,000,000 at about 4.5 per cent, a difference of $875,000.

"If we had our normal line of credit, this never would have happened," Mr. Mills said.

ing to T. H. Crosby, BCPC chairman, on behalf of Premier W. A. G. Bennett. Dr. Fisher said he never had instructions to discuss "financial policy and major financial transactions" with H. L. Briggs, former BCPC general manager, Mr. Mills or BCPC's technical staff.

INESCAPABLE

"The pooling of bank credit lines was inescapable and in effect, the only realistic and flexible way for the minister of finance (Premier Bennett) as the statutory fiscal agent for BCPC, PGE and B.C. Toll Authority to secure the maximum worth of a greatly diminished credit line with respect to bank notes—subject to government guarantee."

"Incidentally, all of the (three operations) are creatures of the province subject to certain legislative controls and none has a right to a privileged priority over another."

Dr. Fisher said recent in-

TEMPERATURE LOW; ALSO, MORE SNOW

It's more of the same Wednesday as far as the weather is concerned.

Snow flurries. And there's no sign of a change in temperature, either, weatherman Bill Mackie said today.

Official forecast for tonight and Wednesday morning calls for a cloudy sky, with "a few light snow flurries." The thermometer will dip from today's average 35 to 32 tonight, 37 Wednesday.

LOW PRESSURE

Continued light snow is due to a minor area of low pressure west of Washington state and another one south of the lower B.C. coast.

Snow was still draping itself over the Malahat this morning, but the road surface is good and chains are not required.

Other main highways are reported clear and open and no traffic tie-ups have been reported.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Victoria branch B.C. Government Employees' Association Monday asked its executive to "take immediate steps" on the question of wages.

About 60 members attending the closed meeting voted unanimously for action by the provincial executive and expressed "annoyance and dissatisfaction" over the $1,500,000 allocation in the budget for civil service wage adjustments.

Hit-run driver Ronald Lawrence Marshall, of Sidney, was fined $50 and $5 costs for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and $25 and $3 costs for careless driving when he pleaded guilty to charges in Sidney RCMP court Monday.

In addition, the court ordered a 90-day suspension of Marshall's driver's licence.

Police said Marshall side-swiped another car on Beacon Avenue, Sidney, Saturday night, and he was arrested Sunday.

City Engineer James Garnett will discuss the downtown parking plan at a luncheon-meeting of the Real Estate Board of Victoria Wednesday in the Empress Hotel ballroom.

Grant Gordon Hunter, 18, of 1042 Dunsmuir, and Arthur L. Wheatley, 20, RCN, each were fined $15 in Esquimalt police court Monday when they pleaded guilty to being minors in possession of beer.

Annual convention of the Shipyard General Workers' Federation of B.C. will be held Saturday at 715 Johnson. Some 30 delegates representing 3,000 workers in Greater Victoria and on the mainland are expected.

Threat of a planted bomb cleared Colquitz Junior High School until noon today while a search of the premises.

Saanich police received a telephone call at 8:34 a.m., saying a bomb was placed in the school.

DEATH, HAVOC AS TWISTER RIPS INTO ST. LOUIS

Joint Protest By Civic Group Dowell Plan

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell today blasted the CPR, the federal government and local members of Parliament as the battle to reach its shrillest pitch.

He probably will call a special meeting of the inter-municipal committee to protest the suspension of winter services.

His criticism came as the B.C. legislature prepared to continue a debate started Monday afternoon on the ferry crisis.

The debate started when Works Minister W. N. Chant introduced a motion, seconded by George Gregory (Lib., Victoria), asking the federal government to assure continuation of year-round service between Victoria and Vancouver.

barrage against the CPR and the federal government, which crossed party lines.

Several members urged the government take over all CPR services.

The CPR has announced that, after sailings of Feb. 25, service from Victoria to Vancouver-Seattle will be suspended during the winter, and the night steamer to Vancouver and all service to Port Angeles ended completely.

Acting Mayor Dowell bitterly criticized local members of Parliament for failing to speak up against the CPR's decision.

'Legal Excuses' Under Criticism

He also blasted federal government "legal excuses" for not taking action and threw his support behind suggestions that the federal or provincial governments should take over the entire CPR ferry service on the west coast.

Ald. Dowell said he was "surprised" when reading accounts of a debate in the Commons on the CPR plan "that apparently there were no remarks from our own members, Defence Minister George Peckham and A. deB. McPhillips.

"You'd think our own members would at least say something. The member from Vancouver, Mr. Winch, did."

Ald. Dowell said the federal government's attitude of "utter disregard is unbelievable. It seems to me they've taken the easy way out and are making excuses."

(Transport Minister George Hees said the federal government does not plan to interfere with the suspension. He said Ottawa has no legal obligations to maintain a ferry service.)

"Legally speaking they may be right," said Ald. Dowell, "but I think they have some moral obligation to this city which is the capital of B.C."

'CPR Wants All Cream, No Milk'

He said he fully supported suggestions during a debate in the provincial legislature urging a federal or provincial take-over of all CPR ferry services here, using profitable runs to offset the cost of losing operations.

"The CPR wants all the cream and none of the milk," Ald. Dowell charged.

He said he was keeping in daily contact with Mayor Percy Scurrell, vacationing in Palm Springs, who has offered to lead a delegation to Ottawa if necessary.

Oak Bay municipal council endorsed the fight Monday, voting to wire a protest to federal Transport Minister George Hees.

Coun. Fred Robinson said the CPR's winter ferry function should be taken on the basis of the year-round operation, and that the company should not be allowed to drop the service and pick it up again "in the most lucrative part of the season."

Coun. Geoffrey Ellis termed the move "a great unfairness" on the part of the CPR.

"The more we hit at the federal government the better," said Coun. Fred Hawes.

He suggested the CPR should at least retain the night steamers until B.C. government ferries start operations from Sidney next year.

George Bonner, president of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association, brought in the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway. In a wire to Attorney-General Robert Bonner, he suggested increased E & N service, including day and night passenger trains with sleeping car accommodation, with complete trains ferried across from Nanaimo to Vancouver.

An obscure clause in the 88-year-old terms of agreement under which British Columbia joined confederation may yet be a factor in the battle for the ferries.

The clause was detailed by Attorney-General Bonner in the legislature Monday.

He said he had searched

B.C. CAPITAL ESCAPES SENTENCE TO OAKALLA

VANCOUVER (CP)—Proposal to move the B.C. capital to the mainland was turned down by municipal council suburban Burnaby Monday night, but only by a slim margin.

Councillor Camille Mather said curtailed Canadian Pacific Steamship service would make travel to Victoria difficult. She suggested Oakalla Prison Farm or the B.C. Penitentiary suitable sites for the capital. The proposal was defeated 4 to 3.

Rangers Call Up Canuck Goalie

NEW YORK (AP)—Bruce Gamble, 20-year-old first-year goalie with Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League, was called up today by New York Rangers and will be in the nets against Boston Bruins Wednesday night. Lorne Worsley, regular Ranger goalie, suffered a back injury in Sunday's game.

City Woman Wins

VANCOUVER (CP)—An out-of-court settlement for $1,911 has been accepted by Mrs. Christine La Faine of Victoria in her suit in B.C. Supreme Court here. She sued for damages for injuries suffered in a fall in a west-end apartment Sept. 21, 1957. Defendant was Charles H. Southey, owner of the apartments where the accident occurred.

Abel Rehired

DETROIT (CP)—Detroit Red Wings, in the worst slump in the club's history, today decided to rehire coach Sid Abel for next season.

Cage Star Pro?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Shirley Topley, 24-year-old basketball star with Vancouver Ellers senior A women's team, has had her eligibility as an amateur questioned as a result of a globe-trotting tour with a United States all-star team. The Ontario Ladies Basketball Association has filed an official protest and Miss Topley's amateur card has been set aside until the matter is dealt with.

Canada Wins 8-1

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)—Canada's entry in the world hockey championships tonight defeated a Swedish all-star team 8-1 in a pre-tournament exhibition game. The first period was scoreless, but the Belleville McFarlands poured in five goals in the second period for the win.

SHIP MISSING; 31 ABOARD

HALIFAX (CP)—The Icelandic trawler Jull with 31 men aboard is missing in the Atlantic, northeast of Newfoundland, RCAF search headquarters said today.

The 657-ton ship was last heard from Sunday morning when her skipper radioed she was "in danger" and fighting heavy weather and severe icing.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Campbell was speeding toward an overturned yellow dory believed to be from the missing trawler Blue Wave with 17 aboard. The Blue Wave was reported missing Monday.

Sommers Case Flares Again in Legislature

George Gregory, Liberal MLA for Victoria, challenged Attorney-General Robert Bonner in the legislature Monday to explain why he delayed prosecution in the case of ex-lands and forests minister Robert Sommers.

(Attorney-General Bonner was to speak in the budget debate this afternoon.)

Mr. Gregory stated that the original charges of bribery against Mr. Sommers made by accountant Charles Eversfield were "no mere shots in the dark."

He said Eversfield in his statutory declaration handed to the attorney-general on Dec. 5, 1955, specifically accused Sommers of receiving $697 worth of rugs; $2,500 telegraphed by H. W. Gray; $1,000 in cash mailed by H. W. Gray; four $500 bonds and two $50 bonds.

On charges of these specific charges, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, Mr. Gregory said.

ACQUITTED ON NONE

"In respect of no charges made by Eversfield was the minister acquitted. In respect of only two was the jury unable to agree on a verdict."

"It took the court five months to resolve only part of the case. Yet the attorney-

"Only three people knew of its existence at that time—Sturdy, Eversfield and the attorney-general. And one of them told Sommers."

"It is most unlikely that either Sturdy or Eversfield did because they had, after all, gone to the attorney-general to complain to him about Sommers."

"And yet Sommers learned of its existence, not merely in general terms, but specifically, even of its date and even before whom it was made."

"Who told Sommers? I suggest that a process of elimination leads to the conclusion

22 Bodies Found Amid Wreckage

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—A tornado with winds up to 110 miles an hour smashed into St. Louis early today, spreading death and destruction from the southwest edge of the city to the centre.

Twenty-two bodies were in the city morgue. Police said the death toll was expected to rise.

The two city hospitals reported they treated and released 270 persons and kept 55 for additional treatment.

In suburban Brentwood the storm felled the 300-ft. transmitting tower of radio station KXLW. Another transmitting tower, that of television station KTVI, was flattened in southwest St. Louis. It crushed two residences and three parked cars but no one was injured.

The storm hammered hardest on a seven-by-30 block area a mile west of the downtown heart of the city.

It is a predominantly Negro neighborhood.

Searchers worked throughout the night, turning over rubble in frantic rescue efforts.

At dawn, they renewed their methodical hunt for the dead and the living caught in falling bricks, concrete and lumber.

St. Louis was lashed by torrential rains for hours before the tornado struck "like a train."

"God knows how many people are trapped in those buildings," said deputy fire chief James Sauerwein.

Debris was piled two feet deep in the section hardest hit.

TERRIFIC BLOW

The storm struck at 2:20 a.m. William McAllister was leaving a gasoline station in the area when the storm struck.

"There was a terrific glow of light as if a cloud was illuminated and there was the sound like the roar of a tremendous automobile racing its engine," McAllister said.

"Within two minutes the sound of the storm had passed and there was a terrific silence."

UTTER CONFUSION

The area was utter confusion. One policeman reported six bodies had been carried from a levelled four-family apartment two blocks from Busch Stadium where St. Louis Cardinals play. The ball park itself was not damaged.

Police said persons were trapped in at least three smashed homes or apartments. Some 14 persons were reported trapped in a three-

Victoria Shareholders Sue 'Lucky'

Special to the Times

VANCOUVER—The fight of three small shareholders against the giant John Labatt Brewing Company was caught up in a legal argument here today.

Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane adjourned until late this afternoon decision on an application by J. G. McIntosh, Victoria, representing G. Fitzpatrick Dunn, his wife Jean, both of Victoria, and Sooke Investments Ltd. to call three witnesses.

WOULD BLOCK ORDER

The Dunns and Sooke Investments are seeking to have set aside an order by Mr. Justice J. G. Ruitan, made Nov. 4, compelling them to sell their shares of Lucky Lager common stock at the original offering price of $5.25 per share.

Mr. Justice Macfarlane said on a motion to Supreme Court chambers evidence is generally taken by affidavits and not from witnesses.

Mr. McIntosh said he wanted to call Elmore Meredith, Q.C. of Lucky Lager; George Norman, former president of Lucky Lager and now board chairman of Labatt's, and W. H. Loader of the Montreal Trust Co.

The Dunns and Sooke Investments contend that the offer of $5.25 per share is not "a fair and equitable price."

Ken Meredith, counsel for Labatt's, said that the applicants had all relevant documents of Labatt's prior to the company's offer to buy the shares.

Mr. McIntosh said shareholders were not given all information necessary in the balance sheets of John Labatt's Ltd. to make a full appraisal of the company's position.

Ex-Premier's Family Surprised By B.C. Plan for $5,000 Pension

Byron Johnson Jr. son of the former premier of British Columbia, today expressed surprise at the Social Credit government bill to provide his father with a lifetime pension of $5,000 a year and said it

"was neither requested, required nor discussed."

Speaking with the Times by telephone from Vancouver, Mr. Johnson said that his mother and father were holidaying in California and that the implication of the bill—that his father was in straitened circumstances—was not true.

"The bill was introduced in the House Monday afternoon by Premier Bennett, who said that 'the great service' of the former premier should be recognized. It would start payment on April 1 this year."

"If this had been a general bill, setting up a pension plan for retired premiers, it would have been a different matter," Mr. Johnson said.

"However, it was introduced solely in the name of my father and puts a different construction on the whole thing."

Ex-premier Johnson is not able to discuss the subject because of a partial speech paralysis resulting from a stroke suffered in April, 1955.

Since that time, he has been making slow but steady progress and is now able to walk with the aid of a cane.

In 1950, while attending a Dominion-Provincial conference in the east, Mr. Johnson was badly injured in a car crash outside Quebec and flown home to Victoria for hospitalization.

He is understood to have given up his business contacts when he assumed the office of Premier in 1947.

Byron Johnson and his brother John followed their father in the cartage business in this city and created a successful hauling and building-supply business.

The Premier had been a partner in Evans, Coleman and Johnson Brothers and Gilley Brothers of New Westminster, as well as a director of the B.C. Electric.

Despite the loss of income from entering politics and giving up his business connections, and the heavy expense of two severe physical setbacks, Mr. Johnson was believed to have lieved by his close friends to be in "reasonably comfortable" circumstances.

The family occupies a fine home in the Uplands at 2895 Beach Drive.

STATEMENT

In a prepared statement in Vancouver today, Byron Johnson Jr. said:

"Because my mother and father are in California on vacation, I have been asked to comment on the Byron Ingemar Johnson Act, introduced in the House yesterday. Last spring Mr. Ron Worley arranged for Premier Bennett to see dad at our home in Victoria.

"During the course of the visit, which was the first time he had seen Mr. Bennett since 1952, it was suggested that my parents might like to use the PGE private car, for a trip, a gesture which was appreciated but subsequently declined.

"Later we heard from my uncle John that Mr. Worley had said something to him about a possible pension for former premiers.

"The subject was never discussed between the premier and my father.

"As there was only one former premier living at the time, it was a family joke that Mr. Bennett was preparing for his own defeat.

"From a family point of view it should be made clear that the idea of a pension originated with Mr. Bennett and was not requested or required.

"From a human point of view it is always nice to be recognized in a sincere manner.

UNFORTUNATE

"But one would think that the premier would have contacted my mother or father before making the announcement.

"I feel it is very unfortunate that Mr. Bennett has chosen to use my father's name alone. If the premier had chosen to make a general bill, for future pensions, reaction by the public and by my own family would have been far different."

Asked by The Times if his father would accept the $5,000 a year pension if it passed the House, Mr. Johnson said:

"Frankly, I don't know. Because of the fact he's in California, and of his illness and speech infirmity it is difficult to discuss it fully with him."

BYRON JOHNSON

Mr. Johnson was first elected for Victoria riding in 1933 but lost his seat in 1937 after his business took him to New Westminster. He came back to the legislature in 1945 as member for New Westminster, became Coalition Premier in December, 1947, after the late John Hart retired, and was then defeated in the Social Credit victory of 1952 following the breakup of the Coalition.

NEW 2,500-MILE H-ROCKET CHOSEN

U.K. Goes a Bluestreak

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain announced plans today to go ahead with development of a 2,500-mile rocket as the weapon best suited to her defence needs.

It is the Bluestreak, a guided missile capable of delivering a hydrogen warhead. It can be fired from underground emplacements. There have been reports that it may be test-fired before the end of this year.

The government's annual defence report, reviewing the first two years of Britain's current five-year nuclear age plan, estimated the 1959-1960 defence bill at £1,514,000,000 ($4,250,000,000). This is about one-third of Britain's total annual budget and £20,000,000 more than the actual spending in the current financial year ending next month.

The government said Britain's production of megaton hydrogen bombs is proceeding steadily, in addition to the growing stock of smaller kiloton nuclear weapons.

The report noted satisfactory progress in the development of flying bombs to be released from high-flying aircraft outside the range of enemy anti-aircraft defence systems.

The defence of Britain's own "deterrent bases" would be performed increasingly by ground-to-air missiles, of which the British-built Bloodhound Ramjet was the most outstanding.

Other points made by the report were:

A supersonic, low-flying, nuclear-bomb-carrying plane, the TSR-2, was being developed for army support and other tactical operations. This plane would be able to carry air-to-air missiles.

Work has begun on four guided missile County class ships with combined steam and gas turbine machinery. Two more will be started soon.

Satisfactory progress is being made to end military conscription by 1962 and reorganize a completely voluntary military force.

Dulles Goes To Hospital

(Times News Services)

WASHINGTON—State Secretary Dulles, wan but smiling, checked into Walter Reed army hospital today for a hernia operation.

Dulles also will be treated for his colon inflation, which has resisted medication. Treatment will require several weeks of rest.

"The secretary is worn out," a hospital spokesman said. "He needs a rest."

His ailment, kept secret for more than a month, was disclosed by President Eisenhower, Monday night after Dulles asked and got a formal leave of absence. It immediately posed two big questions:

Will Dulles, who will be 71 Feb. 25, return to his post?

Will the West, with an ailing Dulles or without him at all, revise its policy toward new Soviet threats and demands on Germany?

In Britain, both outcomes were feared.

The British press, however—even Dulles' sharpest critics—showed unprecedented sympathy for his illness and its possible effects.

GIGANTIC MOUNTAIN SLIDE POISED OVER SWISS HAMLET

VIEGE, Switzerland (AP)—Authorities announced Monday that a huge mountain slide threatens the Swiss Alpine hamlet of Heerbrugg and could cut the only supply route for more than 5,000 tourists and villagers in the luxury resort of Zermatt.

A Swiss pilot flying over the area noticed the slide moving slowly down the slope of 14,265-foot Hadelhorn Mountain. Geologists estimated the slide consists of more than 5,000,000 cubic feet of ice, earth and rocks.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved by this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months.

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Gov't Trying to Head Off Student March—Strachan

Provincial government education grants — and the new plan to share tuition fees of university honor students — were attacked Monday from several directions.

Under the plan, the provincial government will pay half the fees of first-class students in senior matriculation, the University of B.C. and Victoria College and one-third the fees of the highest 2,000 students among those receiving second-class standing.

The government deserves congratulations for being the first province in Canada to recognize and give a bonus for excellence," he said.

He added, however, "there is no use ducking the issue."

The board of governors will have to consider a fee increase. We will also have to tell our colleagues we are sorry — there is only so much money."

The largest part of a desired budget grant of $2,000,000 was to go to raising professor's salaries to the level paid at the University of Toronto.

The board of governors will meet Feb. 23 to discuss a fee increase.

The government's offer to share fees was inserted into the premier's budget speech as a last-minute measure to forestall a student march on the legislature, Opposition Leader Strachan charged in opening the budget speech debate Monday.

Holding up a copy of the premier's speech, he said nowhere within it could he find any reference to the surprise education grant.

"Matters have deteriorated to such a point the government realized the students were about to march on Victoria. They had to dream," said Mr. Strachan.

He added, University of British Columbia required about $1,000,000 to avoid fee increases, but the government has given only $500,000 and "the erosion of our university will continue."

The difference between the amount asked and the amount given would mean increased fees for students generally, he indicated.

Students at UBC have been conducting an organized letter campaign directed to all members. A delegation of 208 students, four for each MLA, is expected to make a protest march to Victoria from UBC.

Premier Bennett said following Mr. Strachan's address that the insertion of the fee-splitting announcement into his budget speech was only to elaborate on disbursements which already were quoted in his budget.

Mr. Gregory, speaking in the House immediately after Mr. Strachan Monday, also commended the government plan to assist top students.

But he pointed out, if the university was compelled to raise its fees, the "ordinary" student would suffer. And the "ordinary" students he said were the backbone of the province.

"I was disappointed," he added, "that there was no hint of a four-year course at Victoria College in the budget speech."

"SERVING WITH A PURPOSE"

NORMAN CRIBBENS IN THE LEGISLATURE

A plea for improved decorum was heard in the House Monday and it coincided with the Times "What's Your Opinion" column in which several readers spoke critically of name-calling and harsh language between the government and Opposition benches.

Championing the cause of decorum and sobriety in debate was CCF Leader Robert Strachan. And Mr. Strachan did not hesitate to blame Premier Bennett for the "slump" in legislative decorum.

To emphasize his point, Mr. Strachan recalled sitting in the public galleries, before he was elected, and listening to a premier who "sat quietly in his chair with arms folded and listened to what members had to say."

He did not name this model premier but implied that, in those days, members did not exchange such epithets as confidence trickster, political machinator or purveyor of "tripe."

"If there has been a deterioration in the decorum of this House, the man responsible is the premier," declared Mr. Strachan pointing at his opposite number.

Alas, the Provincial Archives do not point to the past as a model of decorum.

We read not only of name-calling but of actual fist-cuffs in the chamber, as when a man named Smith Curtis (then member for Rossland) seized a fellow MLA by the neck "in an endeavor to pull him out of his chair."

To which the record adds: "Some preliminary cries of 'Shame' were soon drowned in howls of delight as the spectators rose on tip-toe and bent over the railings to get a better view of the fight."

Victoria historian James Morton throws further light on the decorum of days gone by. In his book, "Honest John Oliver," he reveals that Premier Oliver, in spite of the sobriquet bestowed on him, was called just about everything else in this chamber from "horse thief" upward.

Mr. Morton further records that when Premier Oliver (celebrating his 70th birthday in office) was asked what he thought of the B.C. legislature, he replied: "When I first came to this House I used to look round and wonder why men of any ability had sent me here ... now I sometimes wonder why they sent the other fellows."

Continuing his attack on Premier Bennett, Mr. Strachan quoted Vancouver tycoon Austin Taylor as having said that, if Mr. Bennett claimed the debt of the province had been reduced, it was "damnable."

"Is he your friend?" asked Premier Bennett. "I am everybody's friend," responded Mr. Strachan.

George Gregory, the sober-faced Liberal member for Victoria, seemed distressed that Mr. Strachan, after complaining of a bad cold, should have spoken for two hours and 20 minutes.

"For a man who is supposed to be at death's door this is quite a contribution," he said.

Mr. Gregory referred aptly to the snowstorm raging outside the legislature as symbolic of the storm within and said he hoped to distribute daffodils in the days when a Liberal government replaced Social Credit.

It is always dangerous to start playing around with the initials of party organizations.

Highways Minister Gagliardi translated the letters CCF as Complete Concentrated Fertilizer.

Mr. Strachan retaliated by referring to the letters SC (Social Credit) as Sanctimonious Creeditors.

New Taxes Facing Park Concessions

A bill to amend the Tax Infringement Act was presented in the legislature Monday.

The bill would permit the province to levy property tax on concessions in federal parks, provincial parks and Indian reserves, if the latter is owned by persons other than Indians.

The bill also will increase the interest rates on delinquent taxes in provincial rural areas from 4 1/2 to 6 per cent.

Some taxpayers have been letting their taxes go because it is less expensive to pay 4 1/2 per cent than to borrow money at 6 per cent to pay them, it was learned.

the terms in vain for reference to a Vancouver-Victoria steamship service, but said they called for regular steamship service between Victoria and San Francisco, and Vancouver and Olympia, Wash.

It had not been determined whether the Dominion had ever undertaken or discharged this responsibility, he said.

Mr. Bonner said he was not sure what use could be made of these terms of confederation.
